EVANS, VOIGT FACE ELIMINATION

All British Entries Safely in First 32, Rice Says; Tough Course Breaks Many.

BY GRANTLAND RICE.
Pebble Beach, Cal., September 2.— This amateur golf championship is covering a lot of ground.

There were seven men today who had 72 or better over one of the hardest tests in the world and they came from places far apart. For example, young Gibson Dunlap, from Los Angeles, led the grand march with a 69.
Bobby Jones, from Georgia, came second with a 70. After this there were five 72's—as follows: Gene Homans, from Englewood, N. J.; Doc Willing and Don Moe, from Portland, Ore.; Roland MacKenzie, from Washington; Jimmy Johnston, from St. Paul.

Here you have represented all our national products, corn, cotton, oil, minerals, fruits, flowers and Hollywood.

The battle to qualify, starting today, will be followed on Tuesday, where all those over 80 will have their work cut out. There are approximately 40 under 80 at 79 or better, and it begins to look that something like 150 will be needed to break into match play. But no one can tell what will happen on this course.

Lord Charles Is Lucky.

For example, take the case of Lord Charles Hope at the eighteenth. After a good drive he hooked his second into the Pacific. He then played an optional shot. That also went into the Pacific. He played another and that also sailed far out into the deep blue waters. Once more he lashed into the ball and again it curled over the rocks and landed with a splash.
At this point Lord Charles Hope reached for another ball and found that he had no ammunition left. So he went to look for the first one and found it mixed up with rocks and seaweed and salt water. He hammered it out on the green and got a birdie 4, where it looked as if his best hope was to reach the green in eleven strokes.

Worst Ball Is 133.

To show what can happen here you might take a look at the best ball and the worst ball of the field. Here it is. Best ball:
Out ..... 343 324 233—26
In ..... 352 344 424—27—53

Worst ball:

Out ..... 887 1078 508—70
In ..... 876 907 6611—66—133

In other words, to deviate from normal and cold statistics in the way of figures, the difference between the worst ball here and the best ball here on the first day's round was a mere matter of 83 strokes. This will help to explain the dread and terror of the hazards on this course, where perfection is rewarded and where mistakes are penalized with crushing force.

The day was gray for the first time in weeks and the morning wind

DOUGLAS DAVIS.

DOUG DAVIS SETS WORLD'S RECORD

Flies Commercial Plane 194 Miles Per Hour in Winning Race at Cleveland Show.

By ALLEN QUINN.
Aviation Editor.

Cleveland, Ohio, September 2.—(P)—
The call for speed and more speed in commercial aviation was answered at the national air races today by a trim little monoplane that ran away from the fastest planes of the army and navy and set up a world's record for commercial plane speed.

Douglas Davis, of Atlanta, Ga., raced the little Travelair monoplane five laps around a 10-mile course at an average speed of 194.69 miles an hour despite the fact that he lost valuable seconds in repeating a pylon turn on which he had fouled.

On one lap of the race Davis pushed the plane up to a speed of 208.69 miles an hour. His slowest lap was the one on which he had to repeat the turn around the pylon. He averaged 174.40 on that leg.

Gets Major Attention.

The victory of the commercial plane was a tribute to clean design and masterful piloting for its power-plant, a Wright Whirlwind 300 horsepower engine, was from 100 to 200 horsepower less than those of some of the other planes against which it competed.

Lieutenant R. G. Greene, army air corps flier of Wright field, flying a special Curtiss Hawk pursuit plane, was second with an average speed of 186.84 for the 50-mile race. A Lockheed Vega flown by Roscoe Turner, of Hollywood, Calif., was third with an average speed of 183.44 miles an hour. The navy's Curtiss Hawk engined by Lieutenant J. J. Clark, Ana-costa naval air station, at 153.38 miles an hour, was fourth.

The little cigar-shaped Travelair has attracted much attention at the air races because of high speed and maneuverability. Army and navy pursuit pilots, used to high speed in military planes, expressed amazement at such performance in a commercial plane, highly streamlined, employing the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics cowling to cover the

JEW-ARAB RIOTS ARE LESS INTENSE

London Reports Palestine Uprising "Appears To Be Over;" Moslem
Chief Issues Warning.

London, September 2.—(P)—There still was unrest in Palestine tonight according to both press and official reports but danger of a serious extension of the rioting between Arabs and Jews appeared to be over. The effective measures taken by High Commissioner Sir John Chancellor and his severe proclamation to the people of Palestine appeared to have had good results.

Comparative normality prevailed in Jerusalem and Palestine generally but there was some apprehension of movements of Arabs beyond the frontiers.
The fact, however, that the French government was giving military cooperation to prevent incursions from Syria combined with the activity of British airplanes had thus far prevented any serious development.

A communique of the colonial office tonight said: "The country north of Safed is inclined to be restless but in other districts the situation was reported to be generally quiet."

"The following are the total casualties to Saturday: Killed or died from wounds: Moslems, 32; Christians, 4; Jews, 100; wounded in hospitals:
Moslems, 122; Christians, 10; Jews, 183."

MOSLEM HEAD WARNS OF IMPENDING DANGER.

Jerusalem, September 2.—(P)— Warning that Palestine and Arabia cannot remain peaceful until Great Britain abandons its policy of making Palestine a national home for Jews was given today by Amir El Husseini, grand mufti of Jerusalem, and president of the Moslem supreme council.

"This is a serious national revolution, the reversion of which soon may be heard in every corner of Moslem Arabia," the grand mufti told C. J. Ketcham, Jerusalem correspondent of The London Express, in an interview.

"We are faced at this moment with a grave national rebellion in which we have the sympathy and it need be, the support not only of Moslem Arab of Syria, Egypt and north Africa, but of the whole of Arabia with its sixty millions of people."

"There will be peace in the immediate future, as far as we can preserve it.
We will not oppose British bayonets, but what Great Britain must understand is that the grave events you have witnessed here have little really to do with the Wailing Wall."

Arabia Aroused.
"They go back to back with their go back indeed to the Balfour declaration (that which indorsed the Palestine national home idea) of 1917. You may suppress the present disorders and restore tranquility for the moment by force of British arms, but the ultimate peace of Palestine and Arabia will never be made while Great Britain continues the policy of the Balfour declaration."

"The whole of Arabia is aroused," the grand mufti's warning came as the British military seemed slowly but surely re-establishing peace throughout most of Palestine, where 200 have been killed and 300 seriously wounded in fighting between Moslem

SUICIDE ATTEMPT OF HUSBAND BRINGS MISSING WIFE BACK

A poison dose said by police to have been taken by T. W. Smith, 28, of Jacksonville, Fla., Monday morning in despair over his failure to find his wife, Monday night had proved the means of bringing his mate back to him.

According to reports made by Patrons, T. W. Smith took four poison pills in his room at a local hotel early Monday morning after eight days of searching for his wife.
He told officers that his wife had left him about two weeks ago, saying that she was coming to visit relatives in Atlanta. She took their young child with her, he said. When he failed to hear from her he came to Atlanta but his search for her was futile.

Monday night Mrs. Smith appeared at Grady hospital and asked to see Smith. "I told that it was after visiting hours and assured that her husband's condition was not critical, she left, saying that she would return this morning. When told that his wife had been seen Smith seemed cheered and expressed a desire to get well.

No marked change in the general

Maximum for Trucks Placed at 25—Abolition of All Traffic Restric- tions Urged in Council.

Referring to the traffic committee a series of proposed sweeping traffic law revisions which provided for abolition of parking restrictions throughout Atlanta, city council Monday afternoon passed ordinances placing maximum speed for passenger vehicles at 30 miles an hour and trucks at 25 miles an hour, and at the same time barred interurban busses from use of virtually all downtown thoroughfares.

The papers approved go to Mayor I.
N. Ragdale today for his sanction.

Before council's action Monday, the speed limit in the congested area was 20 miles an hour, 25 miles in the fire limits and 30 in the outskirts. Truck speed was limited to 15 miles an hour.

Members spent more than an hour arguing the drastic revision of traffic regulations, and for a time it seemed that the proposal of Alderman W.
Guy Dobbs and Councilman William E. Saunders to abolish all parking restrictions and permit autoists to park as long as they wish on any of the city's street would be forced to a vote.

Traffic committee members, however, rallied to fight the measure, and finally Mr. Dobbs agreed to permit it to go to the traffic committee for study and recommendation.

One of the provisions of the ordinance, however, setting a maximum speed limit of 30 miles for passenger machines and 25 miles for trucks was lifted and incorporated in the traffic committee's report, which council adopted.

Declaring that police officers, themselves, could not keep up with the changes which the traffic committee brings in, and that autoists bewildered with the volume of revisions coming from council at its every session, friends of the Dobbs paper declared it would be a good thing.

Under the new ordinance affecting busses, only those operating within the city limits can use all Atlanta's streets. The following streets are barred to those operating into Atlanta from outside the city limits:

Peachtree and Whitehall streets from Spring to Whitehall and Forest. West Peachtree from Nineteenth street to Baker; Ivy from Peachtree to Edgewood; Courtland

PROSPEROUS FARM YEAR FOR SOUTH

U. S. Department of Agriculture Reports Larger Crop, Better Prices Than
in 1928.

Washington, September 2.—(P)—
The department of agriculture announced today that the indicated yield of principal crops of the north is smaller compared with last year, while the major crops of the south probably will produce larger harvests than in 1928.

The indicated composite yield of 34 principal crops, the department said, will be about 5 per cent below 1928 and slightly below the 10-year average.

The leading crops of the north—corn, wheat, oats, potatoes and fruits—were said to show indications of smaller harvests than last year.
Southern staple crops—cotton, tobacco and sweet potatoes—are expected to register yields greater than a year ago.

Favorable weather plus the "hastened" influence of the combine, "has brought grain to markets in heavy volume, the department reported.

Several of the staple fruit and vegetable crops promise reduced supplies and are accordingly selling at higher prices, the department said, with potatoes included in the latter category.

The report said generally higher prices for fruits obtain, particularly apples, which are selling about twice as high as last season.

Beef cattle prospects were held to be favorable to producers, the expectations being that cattle movement to market will be about the same as last year.

No marked change in the general

Killed in Crash at Lakewood Track

Olen E. "Easy" Pickens, 22-year-old favorite of local motorcycle racing fans, who was almost instantly killed when his cycle crashed through a heavy wooden fence at the Lakewood speedway Monday afternoon. The tragedy was witnessed by a Labor Day crowd of more than 5,000 persons. Moved by the tragedy that had passed before their eyes the fans started an impromptu appeal for financial aid for his widow and three-month-old baby and within a few minutes about $275 had been collected for them. This picture was taken two years ago just after he had been crowned southern speed champion at the same track that Monday witnessed his death.

CITY HALL LEASE COMES UP TODAY

Joint Committee To Consider Offer of $2,250,000 for 50-Year Leasehold
by Palmer, Inc.

Proposal to lease the present site of the Atlanta city hall for a period of 50 years with options which would permit extension of the leasehold for another 40 years will be studied again at 3 o'clock this afternoon by a joint committee composed of the finance committee of city council, the special city hall committee and the buildings and grounds committee of city council.

The city would be paid $2,250,000 for the first 50 years of the lease, under the proposal as submitted for Palmer, Inc., by the Adams-Cates Realty Company. It would be optional with the lessee whether an extension of the lease is to be asked at the expiration of the 50-year term, but if a longer term is sought, it may be obtained for 13 years longer for payment of $65,000 annual rent.

At the end of the 63 years, again it will be optional with the leaseholder as to whether another extension is to be obtained for 13 years longer for payment of $75,000 annually. This would make a total return of $5,730,000 for the 90-year period.

Councilman Howard C. McCutchen, of the second ward, presented the matter to council Monday after he had offered it to his group earlier in the afternoon, and asked that it be referred to the city hall committee again. Alderman J. Allen Couch, of the fifth ward, declared that the matter was of such importance that as

SMYRNA SHOOTING LAID TO JEALOUSY OVER YOUNG WIFE

Marietta, Ga., September 2.—(Special).—Jealousy over a young wife said by police to have been the cause of the shooting at Smyrna late today of Dewey Lambert, 20, who is in a hospital here with a painful but not serious shotgun wound in the shoulder alleged to have been inflicted by the husband, John Mann, 65, held in Cobb county jail.

According to county officers, Lambert was shot down in his own front yard by a charge fired through the screen door of Mann's house next door. Rushed to the hospital by George F. Doyal, of Atlanta, passing motorist, Lambert was examined by doctors.

Police said the shooting was caused by the jealousy of Mann over his wife, said to be much younger than he.

SUPPOSED VICTIM OF MALTA FEVER BELIEVED BETTER

The condition of Cecil Ayers, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.
M. Ayers, of Martell Village, Monday night was vastly improved, according to physicians at Grady hospital. On Saturday physicians tentatively diagnosed the child's illness as being due to Malta fever.

A prominent Atlanta physician, who is on the visiting staff at Grady, stated Monday night that there was no need for any undue alarm on the part of Atlantan as to any possible epidemic of the fever. This doctor stated that he had eight cases of the fever last year, and in a period of two years had diagnosed more than forty cases of Malta fever.

LEGIONS OF LABOR STAGE BIG PARADE

Athletic Program and Fireworks Display at Grant Park Conclude Holiday Program.

The legions of labor Monday lay siege to Atlanta and the city fell without a struggle before the peaceful storm that was its part in the nation-wide observance of Labor Day.

Led by the organized units the hosts of labor swept over the city and from the start of the great parade in the morning until the last flash of fireworks had died late at night they kept up their triumphant march while the rest of the city stood by to cheer and make its yearly gesture of commendation for the men who have built Atlanta.

Prosperous cares and daily duties were forgotten as factory and office died, a movement to aid his widow and child sprang up spontaneously.
Within a few minutes a total of $275 had been collected from among the spectators. This sum was turned over to Motorcycle Officer Charles Schilling, who is to give it to the young widow.

Pickens was employed as a mechanic at the Cunningham Motorcycle Company, 444 West Peachtree street, and had been racing on southern tracks for several years. He was widely known here and won the southern championship two years ago at Lakewood.

In addition to his widow and three-month-old baby, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Anna Patterson; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Olin E. Pickens, Sr., of Smyrna, and a grandmother,
Mrs. W. A. Pickens, of Smyrna.

The body was taken to the Harry G.
Poole Undertaking establishment later Monday afternoon. Complete funeral arrangements will be announced later.

DEATH OF PICKENS ADDS TRAGIC NOTE TO HOLIDAY FETE

Atlanta Rider, Entering Second Lap, Hurtles Through Heavy Wooden Fence to Doom.

CROWD GIVES $275 TO WIDOW, CHILD

Tire Blowout Believed To Have Caused Crash—Racer Well Known on Southern Tracks.

While a great Labor Day crowd of racing fans gasped its horror, a speeding motorcycle hurtled from the track at Lakewood park early Monday afternoon, crashed through a stout wooden fence and brought almost instant death to its 22-year-old driver, Olen E. Pickens, of 179 Battery place.

The tragedy occurred shortly after 2:30 o'clock as Pickens swung his machine into the second lap of the first motorcycle race. He was riding in second place at the time and no other machines were near him, the first-place rider being nearly 100 yards out in front and the third-place machine as far back as Pickens.

The youthful driver had just passed the stands to complete his first lap and was going into the first turn of the second lap when his machine plunged toward the heavy wooden containing rail. Before the hundreds who had been watching the turn could even cry out the machine had driven through the rail, torn a great hole in the high wooden fence and carried the young driver to his death in a ravine just outside the track.

Body Found Dead.

While track attendants rushed to the scene an ambulance was summoned from the A. C. Hemperley Company, at East Point. The ambulance arrived a few minutes later and was forced to enter the oval at the only entrance on the opposite side of the stands. As it raced around to the dying man, the crowd, which had been orderly, waited with bated breath for what its return would tell them.

The worst was feared when the ambulance driver took his machine on around the track and back to the entrance slowly. The driver had been found dead. There was no effort made to take him to a hospital, the body being taken to the Hemperley establishment.

The cause of the accident could not be determined since Pickens was lying when the spectators reached him and witnesses could not be certain what caused the machine to start its fatal dash. One theory was that a tire had blown wrenching the machine from his control.

Fund Is Collected.

When it became known on the stand that the intrepid young racer was dead, a movement to aid his widow and child sprang up spontaneously.
Within a few minutes a total of $275
had been collected from among the

MCDONALD PRAISES U. S. A. AT LEAGUE MEET

Says American Republic Is Friend of All Good Causes.

Geneva, September 2.—(AP)—Attending the opening of the tenth annual assembly of the League of Nations here today, Premier Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, discussed in a press conference with optimism and appreciation American participation in the world movement for peace.

The head of the British labor government announced his expectation that favorable progress of Anglo-American conversation on naval disarmament would be such as to overcome all difficulties and reach an agreement.

He said that the great American republic was a friend of all good causes whether connected with the league or not and told journalists representing more than a score of countries that the United States would never do anything to interfere with the purposes of the league.

In his current conversations with American Ambassador Dawes in London regarding sea power, Premier MacDonald said that he had in view a much more comprehensive purpose than settlement of naval strength as between Great Britain and the United States.

Both President Hoover and himself anticipated that their discussions would be preliminary to a conference for a far-reaching disarmament agreement among the great powers. Settling the problem of armed forces on land as well as at sea.

Premier MacDonald punctuating his crisp Scottish accents with puffs at a rather plutocratic-looking cigar, spoke of his hopes of visiting America some time this autumn, but admitted circumstances might not permit it.

"I cannot say at present whether it will be possible for me to go. My friends in parliament have not got a majority in the house of commons. Therefore, there is a great burden on a government like ourselves facing difficult national problems."

The chief of the labor government then unfolded his hopes for a happy outcome of his conversations with Ambassador Dawes and myself.

"I believe we are going to find a solution of the problems which up to now have defied solution."

"Conversations are going on between Ambassador Dawes and myself. We are examining every proposal that is likely to bring these conversations to a successful convention and the result of our examinations up to the moment I left London Saturday makes us believe the problems will be overcome and an agreement reached."

After warning the journalists against "mischief makers" who might interfere with the success of the disarmament negotiations by misinterpreting the purposes of England and America and ourselves. If we come to the most magnificent agreement about armies, navies, air forces, etc., the problem of disarmament has just been touched.

"We are not out for that, either President Hoover or myself. We are both out for an agreement that will mean as much to the rest of the world as it does to ourselves."

"Therefore the proposal is that the naval agreement should be pursued with other powers and that anything between ourselves separately is purely provisional until other powers have fitted it into their schemes and a wider and more comprehensive agreement has been reached."

Meanwhile the league assembly in its opening session honored Latin-American statesman, Dr. J. Gustavo Guerrero, of the Republic of Salvador, who was elected its president. The slim little man with a white mustache, summoned to the chair with applause.

Fifty-three represented.

Fifty-three of the 64 nations of the league responded to the gavel of the black-headed, portly Persian, Prince Pourouhi, who combated sweltering heat by waving a pink handkerchief.

There were six premiers, 22 foreign ministers, four former premiers and 15 foreign ministers at the impressive opening of the assembly. Argentina was the only member of the league without a delegation present. Each from Canada, Denmark, Finland and Rumania testified to the increasing share of women in international politics.

At the afternoon session Dr. Benes, Czechoslovakian premier, was elected chairman of the disarmament committee of the assembly. Mr. Janosa of Belgium was named chairman of the political committee and Senator Seidman of Italy, of the constitutional and legal committee. Other chairmen were Count Carl Moltke of Denmark, budgetary and financial committee; John M. O'Sullivan of Ireland, social committee; and M. Motta of Switzerland, technical and organization.

Premier Briand of France and Foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann of Germany were among the vice presidents elected. Mr. Briand by 42 out of 44 votes and Herr Stresemann by the same proportion.

The others were Baron Adachi of Japan, M. Badollet of Latvia, Premier MacDonald of England, and one each from Canada, Denmark, Finland, and Rumania, who received 38 votes, and Chou Chu-Wu of China.

These six statesmen, with the chairmen of the six committees, form the steering committee of the assembly.

The sessions were adjourned until tomorrow afternoon.

No Account Too Large, None Too Small

San Francisco, September 2.—(AP)—Five coast guard cutters patrolled the waters off the coast of Santa Cruz county south of here today in a search for bodies of the victims of the sinking of the coastwise passenger ship San Juan, which went down last Friday morning after colliding with the Standard Oil tanker S. C. T. Dodd.

The rescued numbered 42, but the exact number of fatalities may never be learned, because of the fact that last minute passengers purchased tickets aboard the San Juan and their names were not obtained by the ship's owners, the Los Angeles and San Francisco Navigation Company, which estimated at 113 the total number aboard. On that basis the death toll was 71.

The five cutters which swept over the scene of the wreck in endless circles had found no bodies, although the Tahoe, flagship of the fleet, sighted two late yesterday. The cutter recovered bodies before a boat could be lowered the bodies were lost again in the fog. Mariners, familiar with the coast and currents, declared that it may be a week or more before wreckage or bodies are washed ashore.

When the federal inquiry into the collision resumes tomorrow surviving officers and crew of the San Juan and officers of the tanker Dodd will be summoned. The Dodd's officers testified Saturday that had the San Juan held to her course after the tanker had signalled the collision would have been averted. Instead, they declared, the passenger steamer reversed engines and swung across the tanker's course to be struck and torn apart near the stern.

AIRWAY MERGER PLANS DROPPED, OFFICIAL STATES

New York, September 2.—(AP)—R. De Angelis, president of Coastal Airways, Inc., announced today that his company had abandoned all negotiations for a merger with the Airvia Transportation Corporation.

The announcement, contained in a letter to stockholders, did not say why the negotiations had been terminated, but asserted it was "not due to the unfortunate situation which developed in connection with the handling of some of the Airvia stock by certain brokers. Investigation shows that Airvia at no time had any knowledge of these transactions."

The letter also announced that Coastal would open a daily air line between Washington and Norfolk, Va., within a week and that arrangements had been completed with the Atlantic Seaboard Airways, Inc., which controls Hoover field, Washington, for the use of Seaboard's extra equipment for flights from Hains Point, Va., over Washington.

FIRE FIGHTER KILLED, ONE HURT IN NEW BLAZES

Spokane, Wash., September 2.—(AP)—One forest fire fighter was killed, another seriously injured and scores of new fires were started over the weekend, it was indicated today in reports received from the fire lines of several conflagrations in eastern Washington, north Idaho and Montana.

Joe Eakin, 24, Chattanoga, Tenn., was killed, and Kenneth Curtis, Bonners Ferry, Idaho, was badly hurt by a snag which fell on them at the Smith Creek fire, 20 miles west of Porthill on the Canadian line.

The accident happened Saturday at an isolated spot. The news reached here today, after the dead man and the injured youth were brought to a Binners Ferry hospital by a pack train through the rough country. They were employed as water carriers.

College Girl Takes Own Life After Parental Reprimand

Edison, Ga., September 2.—(AP)—Miss Pearlina Hammack, a college girl who avenged a parental reprimand by firing a bullet into her own head, was dead today on the eve of what was to have been her return to school in Virginia.

A motor party to Dothan, Ala., for a Sunday movie brought the reprimand on Miss Hammack's return home late last night. Apparently piqued by the frowning attitude of her father and mother, Miss Hammack retreated to her room for the night.

Shortly after the house was in darkness, a shot rang out, and the girl was found dead by her parents. She had shot herself in the head with a revolver.

She was a member of one of the most prominent families of Edison, and is survived, besides her parents, by two sisters and a brother. Funeral arrangements had not been announced today.

HOOVER MUST FILL WILLEBRANDT POST

Administration Reorganization Complete, Except Attorney-General's Office.

Washington, September 2.—(AP)—Except for selection of an assistant attorney-general to succeed Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt as chief prohibition enforcement officer, President Hoover has completed reorganization of the administration of which he became head six months ago.

He still has a number of judicial appointments as well as some others to make, however, the judicial including judges of New York and the districts of Kansas and New Jersey. In addition two judges must be selected for the court of claims.

District attorneys still to be appointed include those for the southern district of Florida, the northern district of Mississippi and the eastern and western districts of Pennsylvania.

CAPT. PAUL JOHNSON, retired Rock Island conductor, who says Sargon increased his weight 32 pounds and made him well and strong again.

"My health failed me last year, and I lost 30 pounds. I thought I would never get well. I never was hungry, and the little I ate disagreed with me. I became so weak and run down I could hardly get about. I'm as grateful as a drowning man being pulled out of the water for what Sargon did for me. My appetite came right back, and when I began to eat and digest plenty of nourishing food, my health returned. Since taking this wonderful medicine I have actually gained 32 pounds. I now sleep fine, feel good all the time and am strong and energetic again."

—Capt. Paul Johnson, retired Rock Island E. R. Conductor, of 217 Maple St., Ottawa, Kans.

Sargon is bringing health, strength and happiness to thousands of sick, weak and run-down men and women by methods undreamed of a few short years ago. Jacobs' Drug Stores, Agents.—(adv.)

These will complete reorganization of the district attorney's force of the country as a result of a survey determined upon by the chief executive and Attorney-General Mitchell early in the administration.

With these selections there will be a sizeable batch of appointments to be acted upon by the senate, including 117 submitted at the first part of the special session of congress, but not acted upon. All these nominations must be sent in again.

President Hoover probably will defer to the wishes of republican senate leaders that only the most urgent nominations be submitted before the regular session in December so there will be a minimum of interference with consideration of the tariff bill.

Nominations of the eight members of the federal farm board unquestionably will be transmitted to the senate soon after resumption of the special session this week, as members of the board must serve without compensation until their nominations have been confirmed.

Just before the special session ends the president also is expected to submit the name of Senator Walter E. Edge, of New Jersey, to be ambassador to France. Confirmation of this nomination is expected to open executive session, as is customary where senators are named to other offices.

ALABAMA DEPUTY KILLED AT CHURCH BY RAIDED SHINER

Gadsden, Ala., September 2.—(AP)—Deputy Sheriff John W. O'Bryan, 43, was shot and killed shortly after he walked out of a church at Hales schoolhouse, 12 miles south of here, last night.

Ed Heaton, 35, whose home was raided in a liquor search early yesterday, was placed in jail here and charged with first degree murder after surrendering to officers last night.

Sheriff J. L. Granting said O'Bryan had removed a gallon of whisky from the home of Heaton in the raid.

O'Bryan was shot five times. The first bullet struck him in the chest just above the heart, others entering the abdomen, shoulder and head.

Sheriff Granting said he was told by witnesses that Heaton fired twice as the officer lay on the ground.

TWO WOMEN HURT, NEGROES KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Memphis, Tenn., September 2.—(AP)—Two white women were injured seriously, two negroes were killed and four others injured critically near here today in the collision of two automobiles.

Eight negro children, the oldest six, died when an orphan's home was destroyed by fire yesterday. Seventy-two other negro children marched to safety.

Polar Bear Hunting Called Poor Sport By Colonel Hayward

New York, September 2.—Colonel William Hayward is back with four live polar bears from the arctic, where his party shot 16. But he found it poor sport, more like big game hunting in Africa. The bears simply dive into the water to escape the hunters and then are helpless.

AUTO RIDES INCLUDED IN SINCLAIR'S TASK

Jailer Says Trips Are in Line of Wealthy Prisoner's Work.

Washington, September 2.—(AP)—The Evening Star says today that Harry F. Sinclair, wealthy oil operator, now serving a term in the Washington jail, has been assigned special duties which afford him an automobile ride several times a week to a branch clinic of the jail some blocks distant from the main building.

The Star says this was disclosed today by William Peak, superintendent of the jail, in denying reports that his wealthy prisoner had been permitted to go on pleasure trips by motor.

Peak, the Star added, had explained that Sinclair, who has been doing work in the jail clinic, had been given the new duties sometime ago. The

PRESIDENTS help make a magazine for you!

EVERY issue of Nation's Business is a built-to-measure job. It is built to meet the specific needs of its audience at the particular time the issue appears.

TAKE a look at the September number, for example. Out of intimate contact with business needs and interests, the editors of Nation's Business selected current topics of greatest importance. "Who knows most about this?" they asked themselves. "How should it be handled?"

Result—in the September issue, presidents of seven great organizations give you intimate, accurate pictures of developments and trends in seven important fields of business activity. Seven presidents—seven of America's busiest men—take time out from their own affairs to help make a magazine for you! The stories behind some of their articles interestingly show how Nation's Business is made:

In search of material, an editor of Nation's Business recently attended a luncheon at which a dozen or so prominent Cleveland business men gathered. The talk—as it so often does these days—turned to aviation, and these questions arose: "What is the immediate commercial future of aviation? What forms of air travel are profitable? Which ones lose, and why?" W. J. Austin, President of The Austin Company, and a leading builder of airports, who was present, answered some of these questions. His views were so clear that our editor asked him to shape them into an article for Nation's Business readers. The result is "The Growing Pains of Aviation" in the September number. Especially timely this month, by reason of the National Air Races at Cleveland.

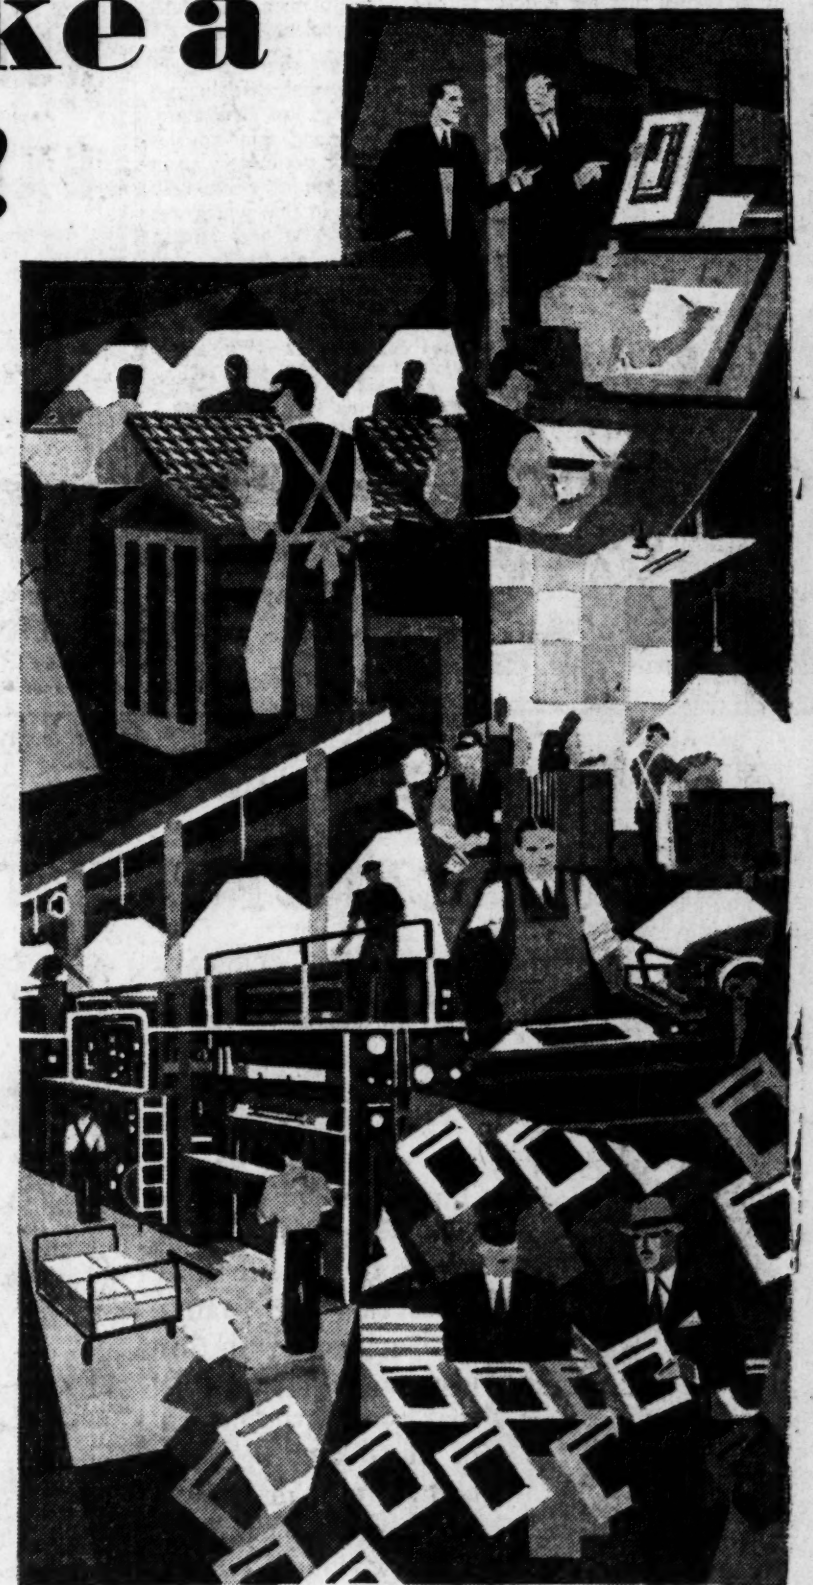

A short time ago, Thomas C. Powell, President of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad, spoke on the industrial future of the small community. The editors of Nation's Business found much in his speech of real interest to business men, and accordingly requested him to remake it into an article. You'll find his answer in "Towns Have What Cities Promise" in the September Nation's Business.

W. T. Grant, Chairman of the Board of the Grant Department Stores, speaking before the 17th annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce a few weeks ago, said that many things were wrong with chain stores which the chains should wipe out themselves. We invited him to write more specifically on the subject, and his "The Chains Have Evils, Too" is in the September number, together with "Chains Help the Wholesaler," by S. M. Bond, President of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Institute.

As varied and interesting are the ways in which we secured "Give the Contractor a Chance!" by Thomas Thorne Flagger, President of the Association of General Contractors of America; "The Fifty Million Auto Myth," by C. W. Nash, President of the Nash Motor Car Company; and "The Listener Rules Broadcasting," by Merlin Hall Aylesworth, President of the National Broadcasting Company. And as for the twenty-four other articles in the same number of Nation's Business—the stories behind them would fill a book!

Thus, each month, Nation's Business is made. Its editors seek out authoritative men, and gather for its more than 300,000 readers a balanced array of facts on the forces that are moulding and changing business and industry today. Here—in a single number—seven presidents and twenty-four other men who know, combine to give you a clearer understanding of the problems even now confronting you in the conduct of your own business!

THE SEPTEMBER ISSUE of Nation's Business is on the news stands today. You may buy your introductory copy for a quarter . . . or send your subscription direct to Washington, $7.50 for three years.

EDISON IS RECOVERING FROM PNEUMONIA

Serious Illness Kept Secret Until Inventor Is Past Danger.

West Orange, N. J., September 2.—(P)—Thomas A. Edison is convalescing from an attack of pneumonia, and not from just a slight cold, as was previously announced, the aged inventor's physician, Dr. Hubert S. Howe, disclosed today.

Mr. Edison contracted the infection on August 14. Dr. Howe announced in a bulletin, and for 10 days his condition was serious. He now is out of danger and rapidly gaining strength, according to the announcement. Mr. Edison recently passed his eighty-second birthday.

Allowed to sit up for a few hours today, Mr. Edison was in the best of spirits. He will not be allowed to resume work in his laboratory for two or three weeks, however.

Dr. Howe's bulletin follows: "Mr. Edison contracted a cold on August 11. In spite of it he continued work in his laboratories for two days. On the third day pneumonia developed and during the following 10 days his condition was serious, but due to his natural vigor and unusual powers of resistance, he was able to overcome the infection and is now out of danger and in the convalescent stage. He is gaining strength rapidly but should not resume work for two or three weeks."

Dr. Howe, who is from New York, was assisted by Dr. J. Hammond Bradshaw, of Orange, N. J., in treating the inventor.

Charles Edison visited his father today and expressed great joy over the improvement in his condition.

"My! you look lovely to-night"

SHE knew the compliment to be true—for the last pimple had vanished.

If you are one of the embarrassed—and men are not exceptions—with skin blemishes that linger, and sometimes leave scars, you must realize that the logical cause may come from the blood.

A clear, smooth, velvety skin bespeaks loveliness. Men admire it. Women praise and secretly envy. Hope, joy, happiness, and even love, may depend on the possession of a clear, unblemished skin.

On the other hand—skin eruptions are outward evidences of the condition within. Authorities state it is an indication that the body's power of resistance to disease and infection is low. Meaning, that there is a deficiency of red-blood-cells.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

When you get your red-blood-cells back to normal, that sluggish let-down feeling, loss of appetite, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again and you sleep soundly; firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong. Your nerves become steady. You are resistant to diseases.

S.S.S. is Nature's own tonic for improving the appetite, building strength, and clearing the body of so-called skin troubles, by increasing the red-cells of the blood.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs, and has stood the test of over 100 years.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

MINER KILLS FOUR, THEN SHOTS SELF

Billings, Mont., September 2.—(P)—Enraged over his recent separation from his wife, Barney Benson, 33, a miner, shot and killed her, her stepfather, her mother and her brother and then shot and probably fatally wounded himself at Bibbston, near here today.

The dead are: Beulah Benson, 27, wife of the slayer. Mrs. Benson, 45, her stepfather. Garry Baker, 26, brother of Mrs. Benson.

Four younger brothers and sisters of Mrs. Benson were unharmed. Benson came to the Severson home early today. He called Severson out and killed him. Mrs. Severson was shot when she ran to her husband. Entering the house, Benson encountered Baker and shot him down. He entered his wife's bedroom and shot her as she jumped off the bed where she was sleeping with a younger sister, Stella. The girl escaped through a window. Benson then went into the yard where he placed the muzzle of the gun under his chin and pulled the trigger.

BOY SETS FIRE TO PAPER DRESS, GIRL OF 6 DIES

New York, September 2.—(P)—A frightened 3-year-old Brooklyn boy, deserted by his parents, was held in custody by the Children's Society today on a charge of homicide for the burning to death of his playmate, Rita Garone, aged 6.

Detectives found the boy, Anthony Tramontano, hidden in his home, from where his parents already had fled. Fearing, police said, revenge from the dead girl's relatives.

Last Friday while Anthony was playing in the street, Rita came up clad in a paper dress that she had worn to a party. Anthony had a box of matches. He lit one and threw it at Rita. Her dress immediately blazed up over her head.

Rita died late yesterday in the hospital. Detectives said Anthony's parents had been threatened with death if the girl should die. In terror they fled to the homes of relatives, living Anthony behind to be cared for by others.

The parents have been ordered to appear in court tomorrow.

Two Scenes in Attractive Labor Day Parade

Two of the scenes which marked the impressive Labor Day parade when it moved through downtown Atlanta Monday morning as the opening feature of the city's great celebration. At the top the ranks of the electrical workers' union which captured the first prize for organizations. Clad in white nearly 1,000 members of this union were in line. Below is the gay and colorful float of the Allied Printing Trades' union, carrying several fair parades.

GREATER ATLANTA MAP IS ORDERED BY CITY COUNCIL

R. W. Torres, secretary and engineer of the city planning commission, will begin at once preparation of a map of Greater Atlanta, under a resolution passed Monday by city council. Councilman John A. White, of the fourth ward, offered the paper. It provided that the city engineer and all other city departments are to cooperate by furnishing all available data to assist Mr. Torres in mapping the new territory which, it is estimated, will give Atlanta a population of 361,000 for the 1930 federal census. The walkway on the south side of the Wall street viaduct and extending from the Pryor street viaduct to the Whitehall street bridge was officially named Plaza Way by action of council Monday afternoon.

ELEVEN PERSONS BURN TO DEATH IN ENGLISH FIRE

Smethwick, Staffordshire, Eng., September 2.—(P)—Eleven persons, six of them members of one family named McDonald, lost their lives in a fire here today which originated in a confectioner's shop and spread to a theater and living apartments. Three others are in a hospital suffering from severe injuries. Several families were trapped in the burning building. Some occupants escaped by jumping from a third-story window. Firemen searching the ruins found the remains of McDonald's family, father, mother and children huddled together.

The McDonald family, which included two sons and two daughters, lived in an upper story. A father, mother and son named Jones also perished, as did a Mrs. Aston and a crippled person. Twenty-eight people lived in the apartments where the fire spread. The search of the ruins revealed charred bodies in beds and others hanging over girders of the building where floors were burned away. Great crowds watched the firemen recovering the remains and pitiable scenes were witnessed as relatives watched their removal.

GROWING USE OF AIR IN U. S. TRAVEL SHOWN

BY CAPT. E. V. RICKENBACKER.

Cleveland, September 2.—(United News).—America's growing use of the air for passenger transportation, mail and express, hits you right in the eye as you stand before one of the booths at the national aeronautical exposition in the Cleveland auditorium.

A large map of the United States, Canada and Central America is spread before you. At first glance it appears to be no more than a large map, such as you viewed with not too much love when you learned the states and their boundaries, in grammar school. Then it starts lighting up. The 40 air lines now operating in this country are picked out in small electric bulbs of varying colors.

The growing network of air lines extends from Western Canada Airways, Ltd., covering all of Canada, to Pan-American Airways, connecting sub-tropical United States with Cuba and Central America. It reaches from Universal Air Lines' network in the east to Western Air Express' skyways on the Pacific coast and connecting the coast to the midwest. Between them are two-score of others.

We need hark back only to the days before Colonel Lindbergh's stirring trans-Atlantic exploit to change the character of that map entirely.

And yet we are only started. Only a small fraction of this wide country is in contact with air transportation, and only a third of it is in contact with transportation of any kind. Air travel is just beginning its tremendous growth. Impressive as the map of today looks it will be dwarfed by the map a few years hence. Those glimmering lines of tiny electric lights mark out the pioneers in safe travel by air. It is safe travel. The air mail, operating in all weather conditions, flies 2,583,000 miles with but a single fatality. In tested planes the established air lines, the passenger takes no greater chance than on a Sunday afternoon automobile drive behind a careful driver.

The air meet here, now in its final days, has had one fatality, and one other serious accident, a small number when it is considered the hundreds of planes in the air, the number of hours and miles flown and the astounding feats of daring and aerial acrobatics which have been performed.

An automobile meet of similar duration and thrills could hardly hope for as good a record.

N. Y. Dry Agent Exposes Bootleggers' Fake Radio Game

New York, September 2.—Bootleggers have a racket in which the victim is the business associate of somebody with a Park avenue, Fifth avenue or Wall street address whose name has been published on trans-Atlantic sailing lists. A fake radio message purporting to be from the traveler is delivered at his office. It says he has arranged to have packages of good stuff right off the boat delivered collect. Maurice Campbell, prohibition administrator, describing the fraud, said the liquor was bad and the price high.

Ex-Senator Hoke Smith Observes 74th Birthday At Atlanta Residence

Hoke Smith, former United States senator and governor of Georgia, was the recipient of felicitations from his wide circle of friends on the occasion of his 74th birthday, Monday. He observed the day quietly at his Atlanta home.

Senator Smith has been in politics for a large portion of his life, with much of his political life occupied with the holding of high offices. As secretary of the interior, he served in the cabinet of President Grover Cleveland from 1893 to 1896, when he resigned to support the presidential campaign of the late William Jennings Bryan. He resigned his post as governor of Georgia to enter the United States senate in 1911 to fill the unexpired term of A. S. Clay. Later he was re-elected for a full term in the senate. During the years of 1907-1913 he served as governor of the state. Senator Smith was born in Newton, N. C., September 2, 1855, moving to Georgia in 1872.

Good food promotes good health

A MAN who thought he was sick and had been treating himself with every kind of medicine he could think of, finally went to a physician. After a thorough examination the physician said: "What you need is to get into the dining-room and start to eat some nourishing foods." The man was practically starving himself to death.

If you think you are sick, go to a physician; but many of the imaginary ills of this world would disappear if people lived and ate normally. The warnings of extremists—"Don't eat this and don't eat that"—probably do not apply to you at all. Physicians advise all normal people to eat plenty of many different kinds of foods seasoned and flavored for enjoyment.

Sugar is the friend of enjoyable healthful eating because it makes so many other foods delicious to the taste. Sugar is not only a sweetening. It develops entirely new tastes in oatmeal and other cereals. It changes the flavor of tart fresh fruits and berries. A dash of it added to vegetables while they are cooking develops hidden and unsuspected flavors. A dash of sugar improves salad dressings, meat sauces and gravies, fruit punches, milk desserts and milk drinks.

Let sugar add, wherever it can, the blessing of flavor to needed foods. Sugar is the friend of normal, healthful eating. The Sugar Institute.

BRITAIN MUST MAKE GOOD.

The Sunday meeting of the Hebrews of Atlanta was in supplication for the safety of lives and lawful interests of their kindred in Palestine, now put in peril by the savage outbreaks of their Moslem co-inhabitants. The meeting had its counterparts in hundreds of American communities. The appeals that went forth from them are couched in terms of dispassion and humane justice, while the occasion for them stirs to the depths the hearts of the Jewish and Christian worlds alike.

Palestine, by the terms of the Versailles peace treaty at the end of the World War, went under the mandatory and protective control of the British government. That government desired the mandate because of the vital position that Palestine occupies with relation to Great Britain's imperial possessions and interest in India and Egypt especially. Her dominion in those countries always stand in jeopardy of Mohammedan revolt and recapture.

But it is of world-wide acceptance that supreme interests of civilization and international peace argue for the continued control of those countries by the strong power and humane purposes of Great Britain. The peoples of advancing civilization cannot suffer the fear that British dominion for its approved uses shall be driven from Asia to be substituted by the fanaticisms and paganisms of the ignorant and undisciplined hordes of the Moslem world in the east.

It is manifest that Great Britain must do her accepted duty in this volcanic outburst of religious passion and project of Jewish extermination from the land that Jehovah decreed to the seed of Abraham and David. She has the men, and ships, and munitions of power to command the peace in Palestine and enforce the security of the inhabitants of every race and religion. She cannot afford to hesitate in that work. It is a supreme obligation upon her national honor and her bond to the world at large.

It is not permitted, in the light of the long and humane history of modern Britain, to believe that she will now become recreant to divinely ordained duties, to the suffering subjects of her mandated authority, and the rightful expectations of the civilized peoples of the earth.

We may reasonably look for the speedy application of Great Britain's force to suppress the insurrections and massacres by the Moslems and to thoroughly establish the present safety and future protection of the Jews who have a superhuman right to be at home and secure in Palestine.

Failure to do those things will encourage the threatened rise of the Moslem world against British rule throughout the east; hence Britain must win this present challenge of her power and rights, or lose them utterly to a triumphant Mohammedan hegemony through out half of Asia—and that would curse the world at large.

REDUCE THE RED ITEMS.

The wisest use of prosperity and profits is to reduce the red items of individual and collective accounts. In other words, to wipe out debts that do not profitably serve current operations. Interest and the carrying expenses of debt instruments are cancer worms and not silk-spinning worms. The former should be killed off as quickly as possible.

These are facts and suggestions that thinking and thrifty people in Georgia should instantly take to heart. We are reaping this year abundant money harvests. The welcome profits bring with them strong temptations to joy-riding and spending sprees. But a careful scrutiny of the note and mortgage indebtedness of the people as a whole shows the enormous burden of debt-carrying charges that weaken their resources and credit, and dissipate surpluses that should go into savings and investment accounts.

Fifty millions of dollars of recorded mortgages upon properties in Georgia mean that the owners of those properties, farms, homes and commercial buildings, are paying out some $5,000,000 a year in debt-carrying charges alone. And those $5,000,000 of mortgages is probably less than half the current interest eating debts that the people owe to one another, to banks, insurance companies and loan brokers.

This would be really one of the most prosperous years in the recent history of Georgia if the people who are receiving unusual profits from their labors and products would apply their surplus money to paying debts and cancelling mortgages—for that is a sure way of making more money by saving it.

HOOVER FOR STATE RIGHTS.

Unless President Hoover can be headed off from his strongly developed desire to shift many functions from the hands of Uncle Sam back to those of the 48 states, his republican colleagues will soon be charging him with Calhoun states-rightism. He will be accused of treason to the party as President Tyler was to the whigs of 1841-5 and President Johnson was to the republican party in its radical riot years.

In the first place, President Hoover was in favor of making the abutting states share the cost of Mississippi flood prevention works, but in that he met the combined opposition of both republicans and democrats who hold that flood prevention is of national concern and as the federal government is constitutionally given plenary jurisdiction over navigable rivers and harbors the whole people should pay for the curbing and control of the Father of Waters. That contention, of course, is logical and just.

Again, President Hoover wants to shift the major duties of enforcing the liquor prohibition law from the federal to the state agencies. He would have the national forces look after those liquor offenses which are clearly anti-federal, such as smuggling, interstate rum running, illegal manufacturing, and conspiracies to violate the federal laws in those respects. The other offenses of bootlegging, speakeasying, possession and sale, and intrastate transporting of liquors, he would leave entirely to be dealt with by the police and prosecuting forces of each of the states.

And, again, the president wishes to have the public lands in each state turned over to it to be held or administered for the federal or joint accounts, as the case in a particular state might require. That might very easily impose upon a state the duty and cost of building improved roads through public lands with only slight aid from the federal funds. It is doubtful that the congressmen from public land states can be tolled into that trap.

Anyhow, President Hoover is showing a state rights, or state sovereignty, or state responsibility complex that is puzzling and aggravating to those republicans who lean heavily upon centralist doctrines and hunger after more federal autocracy. But the president seems to agree with Charles Evans Hughes that "if we did not have states, we should speedily have to create them." He seems to feel that he needs them in his presidential business. Yet it is doubtful that any of the states are now eager to resume any of the rights, obligations and expenses that they have gradually wished onto Uncle Sam.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

The St. Louis

The iconoclastic columnist of the London Sphere, whose habit it is to poke fun at the most cherished human institutions had the following to say of the aerial stunt recently carried out by the American aviator, Jackson and O'Brien, above St. Louis. Towards the eighteenth day of continuous flying, harassed by winged sightseers and cinema operators, encouraged by the news of their Minneapolis rivals' crash to death, a merciful rain storm brought them to earth when their earnings had reached $35,000. The stiff-necked burghers of St. Louis, received them back, not with bricks, but with cheers and dollar bills. For new records had been broken, the world's circumference had been covered in 17 1/2 days in sight of St. Louis. In America men can be found who will endure for the sake of money anything which ingenuity in torture can devise. To fly continuously over St. Louis for 2 1/2 weeks must be near the limit in demoniacal invention. Sit down quietly and think out what it implies.

Dialect

Atlas.

Preliminary studies which are to lead to the publication of a dialect atlas of the English-speaking portion of North America have begun at New Haven where the American Council of Learned Societies met recently. Canadian scholars are to take part in the work, which was conceived and organized by the Institute of the Linguistic Society of America. The atlas will require five or six years of preparation. According to Professor Edward H. Sturtevant of Yale university, "The speech of 100 or 200 selected places is to be studied by means of interviews; a method which will be made of each subject's reading of a short story so devised as to involve all the important differences in pronunciation and intonation current in the United States." "It is astonishing," says Professor Sturtevant, "how little is known about the dialect boundaries and the distribution of dialect features in America. Plans have been maturing many years past for a careful investigation of this whole subject. In such manner that the facts can be registered on a series of maps."

Sidewalks of Paris.

The sidewalks of New York have received their share of song and story. Perhaps some one will write a song about the sidewalks of Paris, which are the sidewalks of the world. Sidewalks seem to be most interesting when they are used for other purposes than for walking. No poet has burst into song to describe his emotions while elbowing his way along the sidewalks of Longacre Square or Oxford street. The song is about dancing on the sidewalks of New York. Paris seldom dances on the sidewalks; but Paris knows that they can be used for many other purposes than walking. Many a foreigner who, if asked why he likes to live in Paris, would say that it is because of intellectual or artistic interests, has really been captivated by the sidewalks of Paris. At a table on the sidewalk and watching the rest of the world go by. Usually it goes without saying that it would be easier to walk along the Grande Boulevards at holiday time if the sidewalks were not encumbered by the bodies of Parisians almost as wide a range of business articles as the "Flea Market." But then there would be less reason to walk along them.

A FAIR DEAL FOR THE CROSS-EYED CHILD.

It ought to be universally known that in cross-eye the vision in the turning eye soon begins to fail and the child loses the use of that eye. It is corrected early. Many a person with cross-eye has discovered too late that the turning eye is nearly or quite blind. For this reason especially parents or guardians of children with cross-eye should never listen to the assurances of friends that it is as well to let the child grow up with the eye as it is to correct it. Such waiting is indeed expensive when it costs the sight of an eye. Even if it was customary in the old dumb days to postpone treatment of young children for whatever ailment until the "outgrowing" treatment had been given a thorough trial, today we place greater value on life, health and efficiency. A child one year old should wear proper glasses if the physician believes the cross-eye is corrected in that way. Old-fashioned eyeglasses may not have been quite safe for babies, but the well-guarded and non-shattering glasses available now are perfectly safe for such a child.

Any functional defect or developmental or cosmetic fault of deformity is most amenable to proper treatment if the child is very young. For instance, hardlip or cleft palate, club foot, and the like, should be treated by the proper surgical procedure as soon after birth as the infant's vitality may warrant.

Cross-eye (medically called strabismus) or squint will respond best to proper treatment instituted in early childhood. To wait until the child is several years old is to assure impaired vision in the deviating eye, if indeed the foolish waiting does not make the strabismic eye blind. The earlier the vision of the eye is corrected, the better the chance of a complete cure is obtained in only a few weeks when the treatment is begun without delay. Procrastination only extends the period of treatment months or years and perhaps makes surgical operation necessary eventually.

In the majority of cases the eye physician (oculist) succeeds in correcting cross-eye by means of proper glasses and other non-surgical measures, when the child is brought to him early.

Not the mere straightening of the eye for the sake of appearance, but the preservation of the vision of the eye is the important purpose of proper medical treatment of cross-eye. In a young child, uncorrected cross-eye interferes seriously with the development of the very sense of sight, for such a child does not learn to fuse the images of the retina of the two eyes into one clear image in the brain (binocular vision), which is essential not only for true vision but for clear thinking.

By all means, give the cross-eyed child a fair deal. No matter how young the child may be, now is the time to take him to the oculist for examination and treatment. Your family doctor will direct you to the oculist.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL.

The Courthouse Boll Weevils Who Increase and Eat the People's Taxes.

The greater number of the members of the recently looting legislature were vociferous and insistent that "people b a c k home" are groaning, sweating and being "ground into the dust" by the heavy taxation levied upon them.

The Home Varmints Do The Biting. What is biting the people who are complaining of their taxes are the home varmints—the officers and the operations which the people of the towns and counties have voluntarily created and imposed upon their purses.

Take the just reported case of Muscogee county, in which is the city of Columbus with all its large and prosperous industries. Last week the county commissioners raised the county tax rate from 8 to 9 mills. The state rate is 5 mills and the school tax is 5 mills. The property owner outside of Columbus 19 mills, or $1.90 per $100.

The state and county property taxes amounting to 14 mills apply to property owners inside the city of Columbus and to that city adds 18 mills for municipal purposes. That makes a tax levy upon every Columbus property owner of 32 mills, or $3.20 upon the $100. Which we will all agree is a pretty high rate of interest to pay upon one's hard earned property and savings.

Look at the stark figures of the picture: The county costs the farmer and other countryman in Muscogee almost 3 times as much as all the benefits of the state government cost him; and inside of Columbus the county costs the property owner 5 and 2-5ths times more than his state government costs him!

What Official Boll Weevils Do. To get a closer view of the ravages made upon the resources of the community by the boll weevils of the county, now in the hands of receivers while a court decides which set of officers shall control the county funds.

Clinch has been a county since 1850. It contains 775 square miles and 5,784 inhabitants, who returned their taxable properties at $2,185,618 and were charged $12,187.09 for state taxes.

The county officers in Clinch are an ordinary clerk of court, sheriff, tax collector, three tax assessors, surveyor, coroner, county judge, county solicitor, school superintendent, three county commissioners, clerk of commissioners, and all the enlisted deputies and employees on the county payroll.

Running through the official rosters of the 161 counties one finds them equipped with 16 to 30 regular officers, not counting all their many subordinates and laborers. Some of the smaller counties of the state have a larger official roll than Fulton county with its more than 300,000 inhabitants.

Therefore, let it be drummed into the heads and understanding of the people that the county is a necessary evil, with its long lists of courthouse boll weevils, that cause their taxes to seem exorbitant and unduly oppressive.

The Easiest Way To Overcome Stage Fright Is To Quit Acting

By Robert Quillen

The curse of America is self-consciousness. For our sins we suffer agonies of embarrassment. Always we are conscious of critical eyes and ears, and always we studiously mind our p's and q's.

What is wrong with us, and how can we escape the unhappy destiny our folly merits? Self-consciousness is peculiar to republics. It is the vice and weakness of climbers. It is rooted in a consciousness of inferiority.

Where people are born into a class from which there is no escape, want of ambition leaves them content with their imperfections. If improvement comes, it is not theirs, why search for it?

In a land where all are free to climb, ambition encourages introspection and all make progress by searching out their faults and overcoming them.

Watching ourselves leads us inevitably to the conclusion that others are watching us also, and thus the passion for self-improvement keeps us forever on parade—play actors on a stage, conscious of critical eyes, forever strutting, posing, pretending—forever trying to make a good impression.

The American endures almost anything rather than make a scene. He cannot reprove a tardy waiter without wincing what his fellow diners think of him.

The upper-class Englishman can make any kind of scene without loss of poise because he is unaware of an audience. He knows what he wants to do and does it, and it doesn't occur to him to wonder or to care what others may think about it. He is indifferent to criticism because he is sure of himself.

The normal child is sure of himself—and will retain that natural advantage if he never is prodded and harassed by that typically American question: "What will people think of you?"

The adult robbed of peace and poise by that same oft-repeated question can regain his freedom and his manhood by resolving, come what may, to take counsel of his own whims for an hour.

Having been a rebel for an hour without making the heavens fall, he will advance to the next step—he no longer dreads an audience. And when dread of criticism is ended he "is no longer aware of critics and no longer will watch his step."

Neither the czar of commerce nor the hobnobber painfully conscious of being out of fashion, for neither cares what the world of fashion may think of him.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK

Special Dispatch to The Atlanta Constitution and the American Newspaper Alliance.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 2.—No matter how much one likes change, and I am of that fickle group which loves something new, the sight of an old-time movie camera is a little bit of a shock to the bluff, hearty appeal of the h-e-m-a-n.

Story-hunting for their stars is one reason for local producers turning out pictures the big troupe to find a vehicle. Jack Gilbert's producers are having a deadly time finding him a vehicle while he and Ina Claire Clug are making the Riviera a-boney-mooning.

Vehicles for Jack Gilbert aren't the easiest-found things in this world. Ladies acquire notions about handsome men. And no matter what type of vehicle that handsome actor might want to play he is forced to remain within the concept the dear public has formed of him.

The easiest girl to find stories for is Mary Pickford while Ina Claire Clug is a beauty who fits into so many plots. Her blonde beauty photographs 100 percent. And producers consider her an asset of ability.

But when she has a silhouette like Paul Whiteman's and some say in the choice of your vehicle, choosing that vehicle is an all-summer task.

CHICAGO PLANE HAS BEEN ALOFT OVER 250 HOURS

Chicago, September 2.—(AP)—After surpassing all airplane endurance flight records except one at 6:31 p. m. today, Russell Mosman and Earl Stetter, their plane Chicago We Will swooped low over Sky Harbor airport and then zoomed upward in pursuit of the 421-hour mark now held by the St. Louis Robin.

At 12:51 they had beaten the 240-hour record of Loren Mendell and R. B. Rinehart, established in the Ancon at Claret City, Cal. by seven hours. Their motor was functioning perfectly, and in a note dropped at the air field, the fliers expressed their intention of remaining aloft until the motor failed.

The We Will fliers must remain aloft another week if they are to break the record established by Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien in the St. Louis Robin.

CHICAGO CABARET
USED FOR GUN BATTLE

Chicago, September 2.—(AP)—The C. O. cafe, a dim-lit cabaret at 509 North Clark street, became a gunnery shooting alley early today. Henry Connors, 40, who police said went to the place, pistol in hand, and looking for trouble, was killed. Connors' body, with three bullet wounds, was found in a passageway connecting the cabaret with the kitchen. Police said others may have been wounded, for the bullet holed walls and shattered glass told a story of a gun fight.

A dozen men and women patrons of the place, which in other days was favorite of Dion O'Banion, were arrested for questioning; but police were secretive concerning what they learned from them.

Two bullets struck Connors in the head and a third penetrated his stomach. Police said it was apparent that Connors, a racketeer and minor politician, entered the place "shooting."

At the first shots, police believe, several gunmen at tables or in booths in the cabaret proper ran forward, stools in hand.

Marines Who Wouldn't Fight! As Told by "Hard-Boiled Butler"

(Those Dude Marines—And a Certain 'Irresponsible Youngster')

This is the third of eight articles in which Major General Smedley Darlington Butler is telling the diverting story of the bloodless conquest of China by the United States marines he took out there in 1927 to protect American lives in the country's raging civil war.

BY SMEDLEY DARLINGTON BUTLER.
Major-General, U. S. M. C.

(Copyright, 1929, by the North American Publishing Company)

After looking over the situation in Shanghai for several days I went aboard the U. S. S. Pittsburgh for a conference with the commander-in-chief of the American forces in China, Rear Admiral C. S. Williams. After a general discussion, he said:

"If we are going to have a row we had better have enough troops to take care of the situation."

So we radioed and suggested sending another ship. At that time President Coolidge, personally, recommended that the remainder of the mobile forces of our corps be assembled in San Diego, ready for immediate movement across the Pacific ocean.

When the secretary of the navy informed the president that there was no appropriation available for the movement of such a large force for such a great distance the president told him to "hire a ship."

"China is a long way off; they may need these men and some American may be in danger there. You get a ship somewhere and send the marines out there." That was the gist of Mr. Coolidge's instructions.

So there came to China more than 5,000 officers and men of the marine corps to show that our citizenship was worth while.

All the vast equipment we had in China—and our forces were the best equipped there of all the troops—came from Quantico, Va., across the continent in 47 special trains at express rates, and then by boat, naval transports and privately-owned passenger vessels.

We never received any instructions from our state department while we were there. Sometimes we thought they had no policy. It seemed that if what we did came out all right what we had done became the policy; if it didn't turn out well it became a responsibility.

Avoiding Entanglements.
We had to judge by the addresses and remarks the president and our statesmen made, and we gathered that it was not desirable that we make any combinations or entanglements with other foreign nations in China. We had read of the League of Nations, but we judged that there was to be no League of Nations in China as far as we were concerned.

President Coolidge sent us the finest troops and the best equipment there were. All these men and this splendid equipment were not sent to make war, but they represented an ideal—to protect American lives without leaving wounds behind to be bound up.

As a result of our experiences in China I have concluded that by a proper presentation of force and a friendly spirit this can be done in any situation, and that sometimes we are not so expert as we might be in handling delicate situations in foreign lands to which it becomes necessary to send our troops.

The problem was presented to us of doing this job of protecting the lives of the thousands of Americans in China without hurting anyone. If I had been a junior officer, I would have been anxious for a scrap. It is easy enough to start a fight. All you have to do is to get someone to shoot at you. Then, after the fight, you can always say the first shot was fired by someone else and your senior officer goes over and explains and straightens out. But this time I was the senior and I had to put on the brakes to keep our men out of trouble.

Our task—and it became our policy—the protection of American lives, appears on the face of it easy of accomplishment, and thus is calculated to allay any possible nervousness on the part of the average citizen at home when his nation's armed forces are landed on and occupy the territory of a friendly nation.

The position of these armed forces, however, is an extremely difficult one, especially when it is realized that, jointly with the necessity of furnishing security of our nationals, is the equally important duty of encouraging friendly relations with the nationals of the land we have invaded.

Playing a Lone Hand.

Unless every man of such a protecting "good-will" force plays the game exactly right his nationals living in the middle of a bitter civil war can be protected only by the use of the bayonet, and trade balances are very infrequently, if ever, permanently increased by force.

Further, our national policy of playing a lone hand in these matters has been so constantly and insistently set forth by our statesmen and endorsed by our people at large that we all realize aloofness must be maintained.

The defense problem presented in China, therefore, was delicate, and was further complicated by the presence of thousands of troops of other nations, charged ostensibly with the same mission as we were, but sometimes with far different prompting motives and certainly with different methods of procedure.

Unity of front on the part of these defense forces was very desirable, not to say imperative, in preserving peaceful conditions within the area occupied by them and their nationals. But ulterior motives prompted the adoption of measures on the part of at least one nation's armed representatives which were distinctly distasteful and prejudicial to the interests of another, thereby adding another angle to a situation already more than complicated.

This many phased problem was really an international one, and we, even in our isolated position, realized that we probably had the foresight to take advantage of moves made by the others, although we declined to join them in making these moves.

We faced this highly involved mission with the full knowledge that if we left China without the good will of the Chinese we would have failed in our task, although not one shot was fired nor an American injured. It was imperative to keep on the best terms with the other foreign forces that we might be confident our citizens were safe at all times, as total isolation on our part might bring disaster to them.

The other foreign troops had facilities which we would have needed undoubtedly in case of emergency, even though we were fortunate in being in considerable strength and had, ourselves, necessities indispensable to the others. On this we traded.

U. S. Prestige Great Help.
Not only had we the advantage in northern China of a large and powerfully equipped force, but we had in our favor great prestige resulting from the leading part our country is playing in the international affairs of the world. I believe that the position of our nation as a world power has aided us immeasurably in establishing successfully and maintaining our position in China.

In Shanghai we found the crack regiments of Europe and Japan. Great Britain's famous Cold Stream Guards, as splendid a military unit as there is in the world, were there. It was the first time in history the guards had been sent east of Suez. Competition among the troops was keen. The equipment of the guards was more showy than that of the marines. There was an organization that had been together for years; our men, for the most part, had been hastily gathered for the Chinese expedition from several bases, navy yards and other posts, and many of them were new enlistments. Our men, however, were more intelligent and more alert; they were taller and stronger, and, I say, it with pardonable pride, even more handsome.

Everyone knows the marines are never happy unless they are first, whether it be in war or peace or even appearance. So the marines dressed up. They nickelplated their bayonets and bayonet scabbards—strictly against regulations. Their shoes, rifle slings and other leather attachments were of the same color. Their tin hats, leggings and light pack equipment were all exactly the same shade of forest green.

The belt buckles, buttons and insignia were shined and polished until they fairly sparkled in the sun. The men even burnished their mess gear of knives, forks, spoons, mess pans and canteens. The artillery nickelplated parts of their guns. The whole brigade spruced up until one was positively dazzled in looking at them. When the next international review of troops was held the United States marines, as usual, were proclaimed the finest outfit.

Finally these nickelplated bayonets began to get back to the states, as men were sent home for retirement or other causes. Camp commanders at home began to sweat and complain for it cost exactly $1 to put the blue steel finish required for bayonets by our regulations. The kicks finally reached Washington. Major-General John A. LeJeune, the greatest "boss" the marines ever had, had to take cognizance of the situation, and he wrote me:

The "Irresponsible Youngster."
"Undoubtedly some irresponsible youngster in your command has been nickelplating the bayonets. General, I wish you would find the young man and speak to him on the subject."

Being the "irresponsible youngster" myself, and all the bayonets in China having been nickelplated, there was nothing to do except to write to General LeJeune and explain the matter to him. General LeJeune being a true marine, understood, and there the matter ended.

To outshine the Cold Stream Guards and the other crack units in China was but one reason for all the effort we put in to spruce up the men and equipment. We did want to be first, of course. There were other reasons.

Captain John W. Thomason, Jr., a marine who is as fine a writer and artist as he is a scholar, in a recent fiction story woven around the presence of the Third Brigade in China, wrote:

"We revelled mildly with some of the boys down in Tientsin, but their general is his usual self, only more so, and keeps them right busy, drilling and indulging in athletic exercises. I'm told that the guard of the day there sleeps, if at all, in its little tin hats and leggings, the creoles of the leggings being nicely shined."

"Keep them right busy"—that was our real object.

AID IN PROTEST ON YOUNG PLAN

Brandenburg, Germany, September 2.—(AP)—Princes Eitel Friedrich and August Wilhelm, sons of the ex-kaiser, today participated in nationalist demonstrations against the Young plan which have been continuing here for several days. A procession of 15,000 "steel helmets" coincided with committee meetings urging a plebiscite on the Young plan.

The demonstrations are being held at the same time as the celebration of the thousandth year of the city. A magistrate has forbidden the nationalists to use the public square, but they assembled outside the city.

Cordell Hull Announces For Senate as W. E. Brock Is Named to Tyson's Seat

Chattanooga Candy Manufacturer Is Given Place After Luke Lea Declines Appointment.

Carthage, Tenn., September 2.—(AP) Representative Cordell Hull, of the fourth Tennessee district, chairman of the democratic national committee from 1921 to 1924 and Tennessee's "favorite son" at the Houston convention last year, tonight announced his candidacy for the United States senate for the six-year term beginning in March, 1931.

Mr. Hull's announcement followed by a few hours the appointment by Governor Henry H. Horton of William E. Brock, candy manufacturer of Chattanooga, to the United States senate seat left vacant by the death August 24 of Senator Lawrence D. Tyson, of Knoxville.

BROCK APPOINTED TO FILL TYSON SEAT.

Nashville, Tenn., September 2.—(AP) William E. Brock, Chattanooga candy manufacturer, late today was appointed by Governor Henry H. Horton to fill out the unexpired term of the late United States Senator Lawrence D. Tyson, of Knoxville, who died August 24.

Mr. Brock, who is 58 years old, accepted the appointment and will serve until the regular election in November of next year. The new senator is a democrat and a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, south. Senator Tyson also was a democrat. This will be the first time Mr. Brock has held public office.

The Chattanooga candy manufacturer and civic leader had endorsed Colonel Luke Lea, Nashville publisher, who in a letter to the governor last night declined the appointment made Saturday. Colonel Lea said in his letter to Governor Horton that his interest and activity in public affairs have not been prompted by any desire for public office, and that he felt he could be of greater service to Tennessee "working in the ranks as a private citizen."

Born on Farm.
William E. Brock, of Chattanooga, Tennessee's new United States senator, is 58 years old, and, like his predecessor, Senator Lawrence D. Tyson, was born in North Carolina, the son of a lieutenant in the Confederate army.

Starting life on a farm near Farmington, N. C., where he was born March 14, 1871, Mr. Brock was forced to go to work at an early age and his schooling was meagre.

At 27 he went to Winston-Salem, N. C., and obtained a job as clerk in a store at $30 monthly. At that time R. J. Reynolds was starting his tobacco business, selling entirely through brokers and commission houses. When Reynolds decided to use "drummers" the "clerk in Brown's store" was recommended to him and Brock became his first traveling salesman, receiving $30 monthly and expenses.

Brock's first customer was W. A. Harley, at Fort Gaines, Ga., who still has a store there and is still a customer of the candy manufacturer. At the end of his first year on the road, Brock received a $500 bonus, which he invested in a home.

Mr. Brock and Miss Miriam Acree were married in 1903 at Clarksville, where the bride's father, the Reverend R. B. Acree, was pastor of the First Baptist church, and among those attending the wedding were Austin Peay, who later became governor of Tennessee, and Mrs. Peay. Brock and Peay were friends of many years' standing.

Interested in Education.
Mr. Brock remained in the tobacco business, until 1909, when he quit to direct a sales force of 50 men traveling all over the United States.

An offer from a Chattanooga candy factory for Mr. Brock to sell its "line" sent the now senator to that city 20 years ago to look into the proposition. While there he bought the factory which he now heads.

He has taken an active interest in education, being a member of the board of trustees of the University of Chattanooga and chairman of its executive committee. He is also a trustee of Emory and Henry college and a trustee of Martha Washington College for Girls at Abingdon, Va. Some years ago he established a student loan fund at Emory and Henry, which has assisted in the education of from five to ten ministers a year.

Mr. and Mrs. Brock have two children, W. E. Brock, Jr., 22 years old, who is in business with his father, and Richard Acree Brock, 16, who attends school in Chattanooga.

ALEXANDER WILL RUN IN OCTOBER ELECTION

Hooper Alexander, representative in the legislature from DeKalb county, Monday made formal announcement that he would run for congress as an independent in the election called for October 6 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Leslie J. Steele.

Mr. Alexander stated that he was still willing to run in the primary, but that he would not sign the pledge framed by the fifth district executive committee, that he would not consent to the system of counting prescribed, and that he would not pay any thousand dollars for the right to run.

The candidate declared that he had not intended to run for congress "until political groups induced the governor to postpone the election for the purpose of keeping me out. Their plans were perfectly obvious. It was intended first to keep me out, second to dictate to the voters whom they should vote for. In other states the party machine has sought to heel the divisions of last year. I had hoped that the same policy would be pursued in Georgia. When it became clear that the district committee in-

ARREST TWO MEN ALLEGED PASSERS OF BOGUS MONEY

Hickman, Ky., September 2.—(AP) The quick action of a filling station owner at Arlington, near here, was believed today to have broken up a section of the selling organization of a large counterfeit ring which has been passing bogus federal reserve $20 notes through the middle west and south.

Two men drove up to the station of Charles H. Burton and got a quart of oil giving a $20 in payment. Burton decided it was counterfeit. He got in touch with officers and the men were arrested at Charleston, Mo., across the river from Hickman, a few hours later.

They gave their names as Charles Norstias, candy merchant, Gary, Ind., and Nick Cuda, waiter, Chicago, and denied they had knowingly assayed any counterfeit bills, saying if they had any they had probably obtained them in a Memphis gambling house they had visited the night before. However, officers found four new spark plugs, new screw drivers and new pliers in the car and believed the men were driving around making small purchases from filling stations and garages, and passing the money off that way. They were turned over to United States Agent E. L. Cooley and taken to St. Louis.

JEW TO LAUNCH DRIVE FOR VICTIMS OF RIOTS

A meeting of representatives from all Atlanta synagogues and Jewish lodges, clubs and societies will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the Ahavath Achim synagogue, Washington street and Woodward avenue, for the purpose of selecting a general committee on a campaign to be conducted here in the interests of victims of the recent religious rioting in Palestine.

The gathering has been called by Louis Isaacson, president of the Atlanta Zionist district, which has been heading the local work in behalf of the Palestine sufferers. The general committee is to be placed in charge of a fund campaign to be launched immediately after the group's organization.

At the present time, Mr. Isaacson said, it is estimated that more than 10,000 residents of Jerusalem and refugees from the nearby hills are dependent upon welfare organizations for food, clothing and medical aid.

Confronted by this situation the Zionist organization over the world is making a concerted drive for funds to relieve this suffering. At a public mass meeting held Sunday at the Jewish Woman's Club about $1,000 in unsolicited contributions was received following the program. The Haddassah, a Jewish woman's welfare organization, has been conducting a drive since last week but this appeal now will become general, Mr. Isaacson said.

COAL COMPANY'S TAXES ARE LIMITED TO SELLING OFFICE

was witnessed by Hoke Smith, a street car conductor, and William Blanton, of 750 Kirkwood avenue. The assassin escaped after the slaying, the witnesses told Call Officers L. E. R. and Arthur Dailey.

Catarrah Robs Patient of Vital Resistance

Find a man, woman or child who is afflicted with chronic catarrah of the nose and its connecting air passages and you will always find a patient who is most susceptible to more serious diseases. Why? Science explains that catarrah interferes with natural breathing thus preventing proper oxygenation and purification of the blood by the lungs and also absolutely prevents restful, refreshing sleep. Catarrah is a constant drain upon the nutrition of the body, making the patient weak and thereby susceptible to all germ infections such as colds, coughs, pneumonia, etc.

Your physician will tell you that catarrah is a local condition, not a systemic disease. You must fight it constantly with a local remedy that reaches the spot. Of the many remedies that have been tested for relief of catarrah, none has given as uniformly successful results to the physician or attained such popular favor as the prescription of Dr. R. H. R. Union, known to your druggist as "White Wonder Salve." Applied in the nostrils, morning and night, "White Wonder" gives quick and most delightful relief. ## Two ATLANTA EXECUTIVES ring for their Secretaries

TWO equally busy executives . . . but what a difference!

One . . . The "Shorthand" Executive . . . works the buzzer overtime . . . keeps his secretary on the run; morning till night. She's willing—she's fast—but he wonders why she doesn't get more accomplished!

The other . . . The Dictaphone Executive . . . calls his secretary only when he needs something done at that moment, otherwise, he simply picks up the mouthpiece of The Dictaphone and "fires away" . . . no ringing . . . no waiting . . . no petty interruptions. His buzzer means that a cylinder of directions and dictation is ready—or that pressing business is at hand. And he brags about his secretary's efficiency! And she likes The Dictaphone and the way it helps things move along.

Mr. E. N. Brown, at Walnut 5419 will give you the rest of the story. Call him today!

In a market in which hundreds of other tires are so much alike, the DUAL-Balloon is specifically, radically different—a double balloon in every essential detail of construction and performance—it doubles both mileage and comfort and imparts a new meaning to safety.

This remarkable tire combines both big mileage and low pressure—providing softer, wider tread traction along with the longer-lasting mileage which is the final guarantee of safety all the way.

The DUAL-Balloon's exclusive feature of built-in shock absorbers is an entirely new principle. Extra, soft rubber plies which "give" inside the tire let the whole tire grip the road with softer-bodied, closer cling.

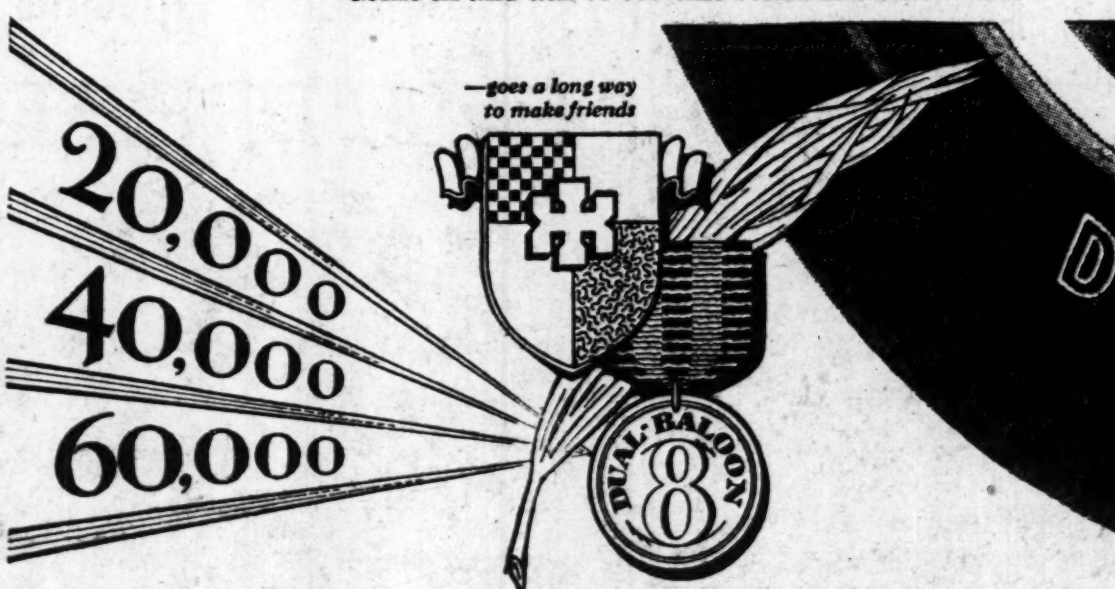

It is an advance over the single balloon and the "super" type tires of today as clear-cut and important as was the balloon over the old high-pressure type.

It is the only DUAL-Balloon—the only tire that combines these double balloon advantages, all in one. Bigger, stronger, longer-lasting—yet softer, smoother riding—for faster, yet safer travel.

It is the world's safest tire because it assures perfect non-stop performance for the whole natural term of car ownership—freedom from the necessity of repairs, freedom from punctures and freedom from ever having to run on smooth-worn, prematurely bald tires.

Whether you expect to run 60,000 miles or only 20,000, the surplus mileage that is built into the DUAL-Balloon, the mileage that you may never use, is the most important of all. This greater reserve strength means an extra margin of safety!

Come in and ask to see this remarkable new tire.

LABOR DAY IS QUIET IN STRIKE SECTION

Public Guard on Duty at Two Mills, Scene of Recent Troubles.

Marion, N. C., September 2.—(AP)—Double guards of troops on duty at the Clinchfield and East, Marion villages Labor Day passed quietly.

Hundreds of union men from all sections of the state attended a mass meeting at union headquarters and addressed by leaders.

Officials of the city of Marion made effort to interfere with a parade of automobiles filled with union men headed by a truckload of provisions being brought here for strikers.

or to the parade Mayor H. H. e announced that there would be interference with the automobile parade but that any parade in which one tried to march on foot would be stopped.

National guardsmen on duty at the Clinchfield and Marion Manufacturing company Mill villages did double duty throughout the day to prevent any unauthorized incidents. Adjutant General B. Metts, of Raleigh, who arrived to take charge of the troops, announced that the troops would be used to aid civil authorities in enforcing the law and would abide by interpretations of the law made by civil authorities.

The automobile caravan of laborers and union members from Raleigh, Greensboro, Durham, Charlotte and other points assembled at Hickory shortly before noon and arrived here at 3 p. m. without incident.

N. A. Townsend, executive council, went to Shelby this afternoon for another conference with Governor O. Max Gardner. Mr. Townsend said he did not have anything to make public, but it was said he still hoped to work out some means whereby the differences between the mill management and the strikers might be ended.

WISCONSIN FIRE THREATENS WIDE FARM SECTION

Lakewood, Wis., September 2.—(AP)—A wide area of razz and timber land in this northeast Wisconsin district was endangered today by two forest fires.

State conservation wardens sent out a call for help and predicted that unless it came soon, the fires would become uncontrollable. One blaze, sweeping over a five-mile front, destroyed a farm house and threatened others near by.

AMERICAN SOUGHT ON MURDER CHARGE IN CHINESE DEATH

Hankow, China, September 2.—(AP)—Chinese authorities at Nanchang and Kiangsi are seeking the arrest of an American physician, Walter Libby, of the General Hospital of the Methodist mission at Nanchang, on a charge growing out of the death of a Chinese boy after an unsuccessful operation from which blood poisoning resulted.

In order to seek protection, Libby came to Hankow, where the American consul-general lodged a protest with the local authorities.

CONVICTED MURDERER HALTS COUNSEL'S PLEA

Cuban Declares Death Preferable to Life in Prison.

Havana, September 2.—(AP)—Ziolo Rodriguez, flashy Cuban boulevardier, recently convicted of the murder four years ago of aged Mrs. Emilia Muniz and last week sentenced to die in the garrote chair, this morning stopped his attorneys from filing an appeal, saying he preferred death to life servitude.

Rodriguez, who is an alleged gangster, today was moved to the death house, from where he issued orders to his attorneys to take no steps towards securing for him a life sentence in lieu of that of death imposed upon him after a sensational nine-day trial.

"Better to die than to accept a living death behind the bars. In death I prove myself to be an innocent man," Rodriguez told reporters.

The murder for which Rodriguez faces execution was committed four years ago at a lonely farmhouse on the outskirts of Havana. The gagged and bound body of the 64-year-old victim was found by her niece. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of death due to strangulation caused by a set of false teeth slipping into the throat when a gag was inserted.

Two Havana newspaper reporters caused the capture of Francisco De Pineda, who confessed and implicated Rodriguez. Pineda is now serving a life sentence and acts as official executioner.

Rodriguez was captured at Tampa, Fla., last year after a world-wide search.

If Rodriguez goes to his death it will be his former friend and companion in crime who will twist out his life on the garrot. Pineda today told the Associated Press that if ordered he will execute Rodriguez with as little compunction as any other prisoner. "Orders are orders. I feel sorry for Zoilo but I have my job," he said.

Three jurors were added to the seven selected last week to make a total of 10 now seated and attorneys and court attaches tonight were hopeful the jury taking could be completed early tomorrow, making it possible to start hearing evidence.

The death of the police chief came as the climax to several months of labor troubles at the Lora mills in Gastonia. He was shot as he and other officers entered the test colony of the strikers. Of the 16 on trial, the 13 men are charged with first degree murder and the three women with second degree murder.

One fact tonight was being cited as making the likelihood of completion of the jury tomorrow appear unlikely. The special venire of 300 names was nearing exhaustion at adjournment time. There still were 24 slips in the hat used by the clerk of court to keep names of uncalled veniremen.

To this number could be added 17 more names and a new venire must be called. The 17 names are from the regular venire, summoned in due process of law for the second week of the court term. Eight is the regular number but one of the veniremen was excused by Judge Barnhill.

With only 41 names between the court and the necessity of halting temporarily while a new venire can be summoned, there was considerable doubt expressed as to the chances for completing the jury tomorrow. This was particularly obvious when it was noted that 107 veniremen were questioned today in securing the three jurors.

The three jurors selected today were:

G. L. Benson, 28, railroad clerk at Newell. He formerly was a member of the Order of Railway Telegraphers.

Conrad G. Torrence, 24, non-union textile worker at Davidson.

G. L. Shuford, 42, of Charlotte, car repairman for the Southern railway and member of a railway union.

The selection of three jurors today equaled the record made by the court. Judge Barnhill tightened up today on excusing veniremen but his more rigid rules only caused the prosecution and the defense to squander their peremptory challenges. When a ven-

JURY NEARLY READY TO TRY 16 FOR MURDER

Charlotte, N. C., September 2.—(AP)—There were only two vacant chairs in the jury box late today when Judge M. V. Barnhill announced a recess of the court trying 16 defendants on the charge of murdering Police Chief C. F. Aderholt, of Gastonia.

Three jurors were added to the seven selected last week to make a total of 10 now seated and attorneys and court attaches tonight were hopeful the jury taking could be completed early tomorrow, making it possible to start hearing evidence.

DES MOINES U. TO STAY CLOSED, TRUSTEES SAY

Des Moines, Iowa, September 2.—(AP)—The doors of Des Moines university, which last May were splattered with eggs by students in a riot against the board of trustees, are to remain closed. The board late yesterday announced that the university would be discontinued, the property reverting to mortgage holders.

The trustees' action was the final episode of a stormy year at the Baptist Fundamentalist institution. The student attack on board members followed dismissal by President H. C. Wayman and the entire faculty after the board had investigated and exonerated Dr. J. T. Shields, of Toronto, Canada, trustee president, and Miss Edith M. Reiman, secretary, of alleged indiscretions.

When Dr. Shields ordered temporary suspension of classes May 13, students obtained an injunction which kept the school in operation. This court order was later made permanent and the faculty granted 60 diplomas to seniors June 4 despite the trustees' assertion that credits would be withheld until the rock and egg riots were investigated.

In view of the court action, said a statement issued yesterday by Miss Redman in behalf of the trustees, the board is closing the university because it feels it has only the "high privilege" of paying the school's bills. The injunction restrained the trustees from interfering in any way with the institution's operation.

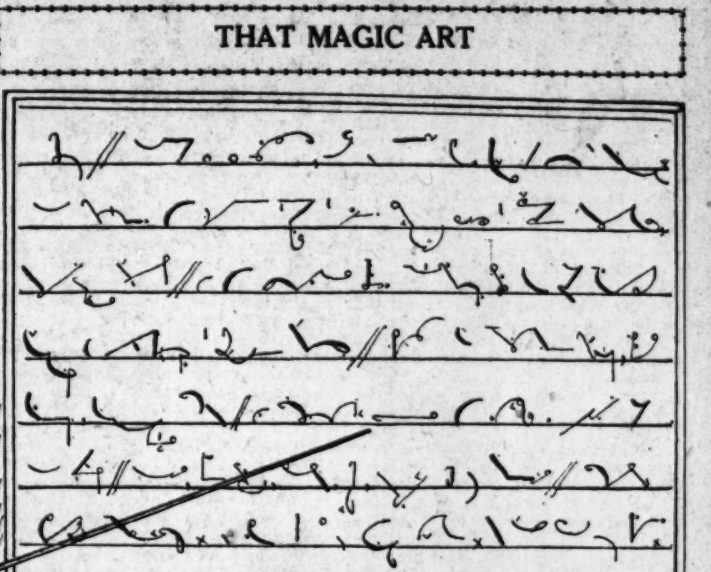

"The trustees have concluded," the statement said, "that if a Christian university is to be established and maintained it must be done somewhere else than in Des Moines."

Reviewing the school's history since the Baptist Bible Union of North America took over the university in June, 1927, the statement referred to the appointment of Dr. Wayman as president an "unfortunate error."

Shorthand That Reports the World Taught By Southern Business College

L. W. Arnold, Shorthand Teacher and Reporter for Forty Years

Fall Term Enrollment Continues This Week and Next

Young men and young women are enrolling at the Southern Shorthand and Business College as never before.

That constant and everlasting demand made by the Business World for efficiency, causing the Southern to make thoroughness of training its hobby, has turned the attention of the young people of the South to this old-established school with the result that they are entering there with the feeling that the Southern comes nearer meeting the requirements of the business man, in the practical training of its students, than does any other institution of like character in the Southeast.

Accredited by the National Association of Accredited Commercial Schools, indorsed and recommended by eight out of every ten business and professional men in Atlanta, having a plant unapproached in the entire

South and second to none in the country, there is no wonder, then, that sentiment, among those who are seeking a business education, is so strongly in favor of the Southern Business College, and that they are enrolling in this school in increasing numbers over the corresponding months of last year.

Enroll this week or next in the "school of progressiveness," where thinking and working are the order of the day.

There was a time when one set of people did all the thinking and another set all the work.

Today, thinking and working go hand in hand.

Whoever works without thinking deteriorates, dries up, and blows away, so far as the world is concerned. Whoever thinks without working becomes inflated, useless, eventually is forgotten.

The best type of education is that which encourages thinking and working. Call, phone or write for catalog. Address, L. W. Arnold, President, 86 Whitehall Street, Atlanta, Ga.

Indian Cotton Leader Here To Study South's Industry

KILACHAND PRAISES AMERICA'S "UNSELFISHNESS"

Americans are less selfish than people of any other nation he has ever encountered in his travels, Tulsidas Kilachand, director of Kilachand Devchand & Co., Ltd., who is visiting Robert Hecht, of the International Corporation, Atlanta cotton firm, declared Monday.

The exchange of ideas in this country is pleasing to the young Hindu, who, at the age of 25 years, is a directing head of the firm which handles 500,000 of India's annual cotton crop of more than 6,000,000 bales. In other countries, he has found that admission to industrial plants, etc., is difficult to accomplish because the industrialists fear that their ideas will be stolen.

"Here, however, your people are only too glad to have foreigners intermingle with them and exchange ideas," Mr. Kilachand said. "There is more sincerity here than in any other country I have visited. In this country, I find that a visitor has only to present his card in order to be carried through the industrial plants, and that people will take time to show visitors delightful courtesies lacking competes with American low grade cotton and waste used in coarse yarns.

Criticizes American Wrapping. Mr. Kilachand expressed the opinion that the American cotton bale is not properly wrapped and that the bale is not of the proper size. The Indian bales are compressed closer.

Never Saw Boll Weevil. In discussing cotton Mr. Kilachand remarked that though he has been associated with the industry for several years, he has yet to see his first boll weevil. "We do not have the weevil or any other insect pest in our Indian cotton fields," he said. "I should very much like to see a boll weevil, for I have heard a great deal about them." Mr. Hecht, who was present at the interview, assured him that the wish would be gratified.

Mr. Hecht said that he is planning to handle Indian cotton direct. In the past few years a large amount of Indian cotton has been shipped to the south, even though on the face of it such a shipment would seem to be a matter of sending "coals to Newcastle." However, Mr. Hecht explained, for every Indian bale shipped here, an American bale is shipped to another country. The Indian cotton is of a much shorter staple than American cotton and is rougher, being an entirely different variety, so that it and are of uniform packing, he said. Grading of Indian cotton is easier and through the methods of packing little cotton is lost between the farmer and the mill.

Mr. Kilachand and Mr. Hecht will leave in a few days on a trip to Macon and through the Carolinas, so that the visitor may be given a chance to study the industry in the south. Mr. Kilachand will sail on the Bremen on September 10, but will return next year to make an extended study of the south's textile industry. His own firm has a number of cotton mills and handles grain and oil seed in addition to cotton. The firm was founded 60 years ago by his father. The acquaintance between Mr. Hecht and Mr. Kilachand started through a meeting in Europe, both men shipping to the same Austrian firm. They came to this country on the Bremen's second trip after a tour of Europe.

CITY CONTROVERSY WITH J. W. BEDELL AMICABLY SETTLED

Amicable adjustment of differences between the city of Atlanta and J. W. Bedell over property which the latter was to have given to the city for establishment of the Peachtree Battle Memorial Park was announced Monday by Councilman John A. White, of the fourth ward and chairman of the park committee of city council.

Mr. White filed a paper which will permit Mr. Bedell to deed to the city about two-thirds of the land originally promised. Council accepted the paper and it will go to Mayor J. N. Ragsdale today for his signature.

$150 APPROPRIATION TO SINGING GROUP GIVEN COMMITTEE

A proposal to appropriate $150 to the Sacred Harp Singing convention to be held in Atlanta within the next few days was referred Monday by council to the finance committee for consideration.

Councilman W. Garland Cooper, of the tenth ward, offered the paper, but it was referred in accordance with a resolution passed at the last meeting of council which compels reference of all papers providing for appropriation of money to the finance committee for a recommendation.

COUNCIL DECLINES TO ADOPT CODE OF ELECTRIC BOARD

Council Monday declined to adopt the national electrical code of the National Board of Fire Underwriters as the code for Atlanta, when it was informed that Pat Hendricks, superintendent of electrical affairs, is preparing a code for Atlanta.

Alderman Robert E. Gann, chairman of the electric lights committee of city council, offered the code signed by 10 members of the committee, but Alderman Claude E. Buchanan, of the eighth ward, demurred on the grounds that the matter should have the further study of the committee. It was returned to the committee for a report.

One of the machines will be placed in Grant park as a relic of early fire fighting days in Atlanta, Councilman William B. Saunders, chairman of the fire board announced.

A letter from Dr. Horace Grant, president of the National Order of Pipe Smokers, asking that a suitable memorial be erected to the old fire horses of Atlanta, was read the filed.

BOAT OWNER HELD FOR KILLING SAILOR

Seville, Spain, September 2.—(AP)—Three men who sailed across the Atlantic ocean in the 36-foot sloop Mary fell out when the hazardous voyage was over and one of them was killed. Dr. Francisco Caballero Franceschi was the skipper and Angel Carbo his entire crew when the sloop left New York on July 21 for Spain. Two days out Roberto Lopez, wealthy Porto Rican resident of New York, disclosed himself as a stowaway. He had hid under the hatches until hunger and fear of suffocation drove him out. The boat reached San Lucar de Barrameda at the mouth of the Guadalquivir river last Friday night. The next night when the skipper returned to the sloop an argument began with Carbo which ended in the doctor shooting the man. He fell overboard and the body has not been recovered. Today the skipper and the stowaway were imprisoned to await an inquiry while the authorities dragged the river for the body of the sailor. Dr. Franceschi declared that the sailor, jealous of the attentions the other two were receiving while he was treated only as a helper, attacked him with a knife. He stated that the man had been released from prison only days before they sailed from Juan, Porto Rico, on June 8 and that he had signed him on only because he was unable to find anyone else enough for the voyage.

Give them the right start

Have their school clothes dry cleaned this week

JUST a reminder—have each child's entire outfit dry cleaned now, so they can begin the school year with everything spic and span.

Be sure to send their things to one of these expert dry cleaners. These plants give real dry-cleaning value for every cent you invest in dry cleaning. Every garment is made so thoroughly clean, it seems to take on new life. The cloth regains its first fresh color. Silks bloom out with a new sheen and lustre. Suits and coats have that look of trim, smooth jauntiness you see in new garments.

These plants give you super-fine quality work, but the price is so reasonable that you can have a child's whole wardrobe dry cleaned at small cost. Regular dry cleaning of the children's togs keeps them in fine condition. It saves you money, too—by making clothes last longer.

Let your laundry help in fall house cleaning

Such a delightful "find" when you discover how your laundry can help clean house. Let them clean the curtains, the rugs, upholstered furniture, slip covers and window drapes. Let them clean blankets and comforts. Then you'll find what's left of house cleaning isn't hard to do. Your route man will bring everything back in beautiful condition—curtains daintily clean, stretched to hang straight and true... rugs freshly colorful... every single article brightened and put in tune with the fall season.

CO-OPERATION URGED IN FARM BOARD TALK

ice Chairman of Body Explains Five Objectives Sought.

Wapakoneta, Ohio, September 2.— Co-operation was the predominant note of the five objectives of the general farm board outlined today by James C. Stone, vice chairman of the board.

Speaking to a group of farmers at picnic here, Stone explained the importance of the farm bill and said that all of the members of the board "are in fullest empathy with efforts to better the farmer's economic position through co-operation."

Five objectives he described were:
"The strengthening and expansion existing co-operatives through assistance in developing sound management and financing policies."
"Bringing about co-ordination of efforts on the part of co-operatives."
"The assistance of growers in unorganized areas to develop sound plans and procedure for co-operative organizations."

"The assistance of co-operatives in developing better business relationships with manufacturers, mills, processors and other users of farm commodities."

"The assistance of the department of agriculture, state agricultural colleges, the extension service and other state and federal agencies in developing an effective educational program in co-operative marketing."

He stressed that the board was anxious to aid in the formulation of sound programs and policies for cooperatives but the responsibility for organization and management rested upon the producer himself.

"The board can move only as fast as the farmers themselves are willing to go," he said.

TWO MEN ARE KILLED AS STEAMERS CRASH

Norfolk, Va., September 2.—(AP)—
With the bodies of her second assistant engineer and a fireman imprisoned in her hull, the Bull line steamship Dorothy, a freighter, lay today on the bottom of the Chesapeake bay, victim of a collision early yesterday morning with the American steamship Eurana near the mouth of the Potomac river at Fisherman's point.
All the other members of the crew which numbered 30 were saved by the Eurana, of the Isthmian line, which proceeded to Newport News for repairs at dry docks there.

The two freighters collided in the darkness. The Dorothy, hit amid-ship on her starboard side, sank within 30 minutes after the crash, ship officials said, carrying to death Lewis D. Paris, of Baltimore, second assistant engineer, and Alberto Ruiz, fireman, of San Juan, Porto Rico, who were below decks at the time of the crash. The ship settled rapidly, making rescue of the two men impossible, survivors of the crew said.

The Eurana was proceeding down the bay en route from Baltimore to New York, loaded partially with general cargo.

Efforts to avoid the crash of the two vessels were made when the two ships loomed up in each other's paths, officials said, but they were futile and the Eurana plowed into the Dorothy amidships on the starboard, flooding the engine room and accounting for the loss of the two missing men, it is believed.

Members of the crew of the Dorothy today declared that they did not know how the accident happened since the crash came so quickly that they had no idea of the cause of the collision. The weather was clear, they said.

MOUNTAIN FIRES INVADE SECTION NEAR HOOVER CAMP

Frederick, Md., September 2.—(AP)—
An extensive fire in the Catoctin mountain section today burned over a portion of the land near here owned by Lawrence Richey, secretary to President Hoover, as a fishing preserve but did not reach the fishing camp. The fire on the Richey property was stopped but to the south it spread so rapidly over the city water shed that additional fire fighters were sought to augment the already large force. People at the Richey camp have been furnishing lunches for the men who have been fighting the flames since they started yesterday near Five Forks.

DR. L. C. WARREN, GRIFFIN DOCTOR, DIES AT LOUISVILLE

Louisville, Ga., September 2.—(Special).—Dr. Lindsay C. Warren, 52, died here Sunday night at his mother's home after several months' illness. Dr.
Warren's home was at Griffin, where he practiced medicine for many years.
Surviving him are his widow, two daughters, Misses Mary and Frances Warren; one son, Benjamin Warren, all of Griffin; his mother, Mrs. T. H.
Warren, of Louisville; six brothers,
B. H. R. D., G. W. and P. L. Warren, of Louisville; T. H. Warren, of Augusta, and J. W. Warren, of San-dersville, and two sisters, Mrs. E. H.
Rhodes, of Augusta, and Mrs. W. F.
Donny, of Louisville.

The body has been sent to Griffin where funeral services and interment will take place at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

EIGHT MEXICAN OFFICIALS SLAIN BY FIRED GROUP

Mexico City, September 2.—(AP)— Dispatches from Oaxaca to El Universal Grafico today said that eight village officials, including the mayor, of Tepecque Coahuilteca in the state of Oaxaca were assassinated a few days ago by disgruntled and discharged village officials.

Keen rivalry was said to have existed in the village between two factions, the old order having been recently supplanted by newer officials.
Among the victims listed were Sixto Martinez, mayor, and Arnulfo Men-dosa, chief of the social defense force.

Undaunted, Driver Arrests Alleged "Bad" Negro Gunman

Hickman, Ky., September 2.—(AP)—
In the face of threats, Syd Dodds, Hickman planter, formerly of Clark-dale, Miss., walked into a negro dive here and arrested Robert Irvin, alleged negro gunman of Chicago and Sheffield, Ala. Not being able to find an officer Mr. Dodds took the negro to the residence of Sheriff J. M.
Thompson.

The day before Mr. Dodds was driving to Hickman with his wife from their 1,800-acre plantation a few miles below the city, when Irvin, he said, forced Dodds car into the ditch.
Because of the presence of the government fleets and levee camps here, working more than 1,000 negroes, many negro gamblers, bootleggers and gunmen from the big cities have made Hickman temporary headquarters, Mr.
Dodds said.

The Hickman Lions Club has forwarded an open letter to county and city authorities urging them to make efforts to stop drunkenness and reckless driving.

Frightened by a Stubborn Spreading Rash

Los Angeles, Cal.—"My husband had a rash on his body and after using the usual remedies all but one of the spots healed, but that one was very stubborn. We used every kind of a salve we ever heard of, even prescribed treatments, but still the spot spread.
I heard of Resinol, and in despair started to use the soap and ointment faithfully as directed. After using one-quarter of a small jar the spot was completely healed." (Signed)—

The quickness with which Resinol acts in most cases of skin

ROBERT DUBOSE, SOLON, SUCCUMBS AT ATHENS

Funeral Services Today for Clarke County Representative in Legislature.

Athens, Ga., September 2.—(AP)—Robert Toombs DuBose, member of the Georgia legislature from Clarke county and well-known businessman of this city, died at his home here today. He was 70 years old, and had apparently been in good health until just before his death.

Funeral services will be conducted from the home tomorrow afternoon by Dr. Lester Rumble, pastor of the First Methodist church, of which Mr. DuBose was a member. Dr. Rumble will be assisted by Dr. E. L. Hill, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Athens, and interment will be in Oconee cemetery.

The pallbearers will be Marion B. DuBose, Judge Blanton Fortson, Robert F. White, Andrew C. Erwin, Hugh Spaulding, E. E. Lanikin, Major A. T. Colley, A. W. Dozier, Duane Hunnicutt, Junius Lewis and

Thomas W. Baxter. Among the honorary pallbearers will be officers and directors of the Southern Mutual Insurance Company, with which Mr. DuBose was affiliated, members of the Georgia legislature and others.

Mr. DuBose had returned only a week ago from Atlanta, where he had been staying during the sixty-day session of the general assembly. It was his eleventh term as a member of the Georgia house of representatives, including both regular and extra sessions, and he served once in the senate from the 30th district.

Mr. DuBose, who was a member of a prominent Georgia family, is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jeannie Stovall DuBose; two daughters, Mrs. Marion H. Allen, Milledgeville, and Mrs. Miles W. Lewis, and one son, Bolling S. DuBose.

SEWER ASSESSMENT RELIEF IS DENIED CRACKERS' OWNER

Rel Spiller, owner of the Atlanta Crackers, must pay a sewer assessment for a new line laid in Lake View avenue, according to action Monday of city council in filing a paper designed to relieve him of the assessment which was passed at the last meeting of general council but which the aldermanic board failed to approve.

Mr. Spiller claimed that inasmuch as the city had a trunk line sewer running beneath the ball park, he was entitled to consideration, according to those favoring the paper.

and to extend tracks of the company to the Girls' High school.

Councilman Joseph E. Berman, of the fourth ward, is author of the paper. A motion by Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, of the twelfth ward, to refer the paper to the electric and other railways committee of city council for consideration failed, and the paper was passed.

Book Trust Lobbyists Blamed for Legal Actions in Kentucky

Louisville, Ky., September 2.—(AP)—Charges that lobbyists of the "book trust," together with its allies, are largely responsible for the several lawsuits instituted against the state textbook commission that caused invalidation of the recent adoption of Kentucky public school books, were made by Governor Flem D. Sampson in an address delivered before Labor day brotherhoods at Fontaine Ferry park here today.

"These same agents and lobbyists," the governor said, "are approaching the nominees for the 1930 general assembly, trying to ingratiate themselves into their confidence in the hope of using them for corrupt purposes this winter. Current rumor has it that one of the big book concerns has been endeavoring in the most damnable fashion conceivable to corrupt certain members of the textbook commission by either employing them outright, or some of their intimate friends, hoping to obtain an adoption out of which in the past they have made millions.

LA GUARDIA NOTES WALKER OMISSION IN ELECTION TALK

New York, September 2.—(AP)—Congressman Fiorello H. La Guardia is nothing short of an optimist.

Addressing the biennial convention of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks today, La Guardia commented upon the fact that Mayor James J. Walker had not personally greeted the delegates.

"If," said La Guardia, "at any time in the next four years you should decide to hold your convention again in New York city, the mayor of New York will then give you a personal welcome."

La Guardia is a candidate for mayor on the republican ticket in the November city election.

PAPERS APPROVED BY COUNCIL GIVEN ALDERMANIC O. K.

All measures sent to the aldermanic board Monday by city council were concurred in by the aldermanic body and will go to Mayor I. N. Ragdale this morning for his action on them.

MEMPHIAN WOUNDS SELF ACCIDENTALLY WHILE HUNTING

Memphis, September 2.—(AP)—Lamar Heiskell, prominent Memphis attorney, accidentally critically wounded himself while hunting near Brunswick today. He was in a Memphis hospital tonight in a serious condition.

Mr. Heiskell and a group of friends, all prominent, were dove hunting when he fell over a loose wire onto his gun. The weapon exploded and tore a gaping hole in his side.

After a blood transfusion the attorney rallied slightly.

Mr. Heiskell is the son of Judge and Mrs. F. H. Heiskell. Judge Heiskell is a member of the court of appeals. The wounded man is nephew of C. N. and Fred Heiskell, owners and publishers of the Arkansas Gazette, Little Rock.

PALE SKIN'S NATURE'S DANGER SIGN--HEED IT!

Pallor and Sallowness Mean Impoverished Blood. Corrected by IROGEN, Famous Strength and Blood Builder.

PALE, anaemic skin, according to the best informed physicians, is the unfailing sign of weak blood. It is nature's danger signal of impending disease, a warning which, if not heeded, may prove disastrous, for it is conclusive evidence of a weakened condition of the blood, which renders the system powerless to resist disease.

Vitalizing Effects Of Enriched Blood

Within a week IROGEN begins to restore the rosy color to the cheeks and lips and the system begins to feel the vitalizing effect of enriched blood. Weariness, fatigue and lassitude gradually disappear and the natural strength and endurance of the system return. Every nerve and organ feels and shows the regeneration of the blood and the evidence of weakness are gradually replaced by the symptoms of vigorous health.

HOW IROGEN ACTS

FOR THE pale, nervous, dyspeptic, weak and generally run-down, IROGEN is the most effective and agreeable of all tonics. It gives a good, healthy color to the lips, cheeks and ears, nourishes and strengthens the nerves, creates an appetite, aids digestion, and promotes natural, refreshing sleep. It is not a patent medicine, but a scientific preparation of proven merit. It possesses the remarkable power of enriching the blood, driving out impurities from the system, satisfying nerve and gland hunger, building solid flesh and increasing the vitality. If you are losing flesh and feel you are getting old before your time you owe it to yourself to test the virtue of this modern tonic. It will make you eat, sleep and feel better. In tablet form IROGEN.

IROGEN and VIROGEN are for sale in this city by Jacobs' Pharmacy and all good drug stores and dealers in medicine everywhere.

MANY PEOPLE REPORT BIG GAINS IN WEIGHT

"I WAS amazed at the quick results I got from IROGEN. I felt my strength returning after the third day, and actually picked up 15 pounds in less than 5 weeks."—N. B. Navar, Atlanta.

"I was skeptical of what I had heard about IROGEN until I tried it myself. The first bottle made a marvelous change in me. In eight weeks I am back to normal weight and never felt better. I found it a magic key to health."—Gertrude Nall, Richmond.

What IROGEN has done for others you can reasonably expect it to do for you.

Irogen and Virogen Tonic Tablets are made from an open formula. No secrets—nothing to hide. Your own family doctor will tell you of the value of the ingredients. Merit and merit alone is responsible for their widespread appeal and growing popularity. Tablets by mail $1 a box. Address: Guardian Health Products, Dept. 81 Atlanta, Georgia.

Cloudy, Cool Weather Seen For City Today

Partly cloudy weather moderated by late summer or early autumnal temperatures, is forecast for today by officials of the United States Meteorological bureau. No significant alter-tion of the atmospheric conditions which added to the Labor Day holiday Monday are expected in Atlanta and vicinity, the weather bureau stated.

The mercury column Monday rose from a low level of 65 degrees to a maximum of 85 degrees. Indications are that today's temperature range will remain within these limits.

BRIDGE FRANCHISE BRINGS ATLANTA CHECK FOR $15,000

Atlanta is $15,000 richer today following acceptance Monday of a $15,000 check from the Georgia Power Company for franchise rights to use of the new Mitchell street bridge now under construction by the MacDougall Construction Company.

Under the agreement, the company will remove its tracks from the Nelson street bridge and will utilize the Mitchell street viaduct exclusively.

Y. M. C. A. BUILDING AT JACKSONVILLE SOLD AT AUCTION

Jacksonville, Fla., September 2.—(AP)—The Young Men's Christian Association building here was sold at public auction today to the New York Life Insurance Company to satisfy a mortgage by the insurance company. The purchase price was $200,000.

Y. M. C. A. officials said the association had been in financial difficulties for some time as a result of "over investment" in real estate during 1925 and 1926. They are uncertain, they said, as to their future plans.

POINCARÉ BETTER BUT MUST REMAIN IN BED FOR AWHILE

Paris, September 2.—(AP)—The condition of former Premier Raymond Poincaré, which recently caused anxiety to his doctors, obliging them to postpone an operation planned some weeks ago, was improved today, though M. Poincaré must remain in bed for some time. The extreme heat in Paris recently proved most fatiguing to him.

NEPHEW OF FORMER U. S. VICE PRESIDENT FREED FROM JAIL

Hartford, Conn., September 2.—(AP)—W. Charles Breckenridge, 89, a nephew of General John C. Breckenridge, who was vice president of the United States during the administration of President James Buchanan and presidential nominee of the so-called extreme southern democrats in the same campaign in which Stephen A. Douglas was the regular democratic nominee for president, was freed from jail today.

He was without funds, and stated that he was on his way to Springfield, Mass., to visit his daughter, Mrs. Bertha Flegelhouse, who he had not seen in 14 years. He said he lost $25,000 in the lumber business at Richmond, Va., eight years ago.

The Windsor police furnished him with funds to get to Springfield.

NEGRO HUNTED FOR STABBING TENNESSEE MAN

Memphis, Tenn., September 2.—(AP)—Police were searching today for a negro who stabbed R. T. Cole, Jackson, Tenn., and robbed him. Cole was taken to a hospital last night, and doctors believe he will recover.

FIVE INJURED AS WATER TAXI RAMS BIG LAUNCH

Chicago, September 2.—(AP)—The second collision within a month involving a water taxi occurred on Lake Michigan off Navy pier last night, when a taxi operated by the Water Transit Company rammed the large launch Longfellow. Five persons were injured.

There were 30 passengers on the launch and a dozen on the speedboat. Dorothy Laidlaw, University of Minnesota student working here during vacation, and D. C. Mandry, were thrown from the speedboat but saved themselves by swimming. They were hauled aboard the Longfellow.

Joe Fehlinger, speedboat pilot, said he swung into the path of the launch to avoid collision with another boat.

In a collision a month ago between two taxi speedboats, two persons were drowned.

W. E. SMALL IMPROVES Prominent Business Man Has Been Very Ill.

Guard The DANGER LINE

GLEAMING teeth make the smile—what woman doesn't know it! But though your teeth gleam, decay may still go on. There are countless tiny crevices about the teeth impossible for your tooth-brush to reach—so food particles collect... ferment... form dangerous acids. Especially at The Danger Line, that delicate edge of tissue where gums meet teeth.

To protect the lasting beauty of your smile, it is important to use a dentifrice that not only cleans, but combats acids. Squibb's Dental Cream is made with 50% Squibb's Milk of Magnesia—plenty of this safe, effective antacid to furnish protection where it is vitally needed.

You'll like the soothing, refreshing quality of Squibb's. It contains no grit, no harsh astringents. It is pure and safe. Ideal for children. And only 40c for a large tube at any drug store.

OUR CLUB — By Seckatary Hawkins

AFTER SCHOOL TODAY I ASKED JERRY TO GO DOWN TO THE ISLAND WITH ME. I SAID, "MAYBE WE COULD GET THE YELLA KID TO MOVE OUT OF OUR HOUSEBOAT." BUT JERRY WOULDN'T GO WITH ME, SO I PADDED DOWN MYSELF.

HAMMERED ON THE DOOR BUT NO ANSWER. THE YELLA KID WAS GONE. WHEN I WAS WALKING AWAY I MET THE YELLA KID COMING FROM THE WOODS. HE HAD HIS ARMS FULL OF FIREWOOD. I WAVED MY HAND AND SAID, "HOWDY!"

TOLD HIM I JUST CAME DOWN TO LOOK AROUND. HE SAID, "I GUESS YOU WERE SURPRISED TO SEE ME HERE?" I SAID, "NO, I KNEW YOU WERE HERE!" HE WAS SO STARTLED TO HEAR THAT HE DROPPED THE LOGS HE WAS CARRYING.

THERE'S A LITTLE CUT ON IT! I'LL WRAP IT UP FOR YOU, WITH MY HANKERCHIEF!

ONE BIG PIECE FELL ON HIS TOE. OH BOY! DIDN'T HE HOP AROUND? HE LOOKED AWFULLY FUNNY, LIKE A BIG BIRD STANDING ON ONE FOOT. I SAID, "GEE! THAT'S TOUGH. LET ME SEE IF THAT HURT YOU!"

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

FLIP TRIES SOME DIGGING.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Much by persistence may be won; And yet it may be overdone.

—Bowler the Hound.

"What shall we do this morning?" demanded Flip of Bowser the Hound.

Bowser yawned and stretched. "I don't know what you're going to do," said he, "but I'm going to take a good nap in the sun. I feel lazy this morning."

"Nap!" exclaimed Flip scornfully. "Nap! Didn't you sleep well last night?"

Bowser nodded. Then he grinned good-naturedly. "Run along, little dog, and amuse yourself," said he. "When you are as old as I am, you will appreciate a good nap in the sun."

Now Flip didn't feel the least bit sleepy, so he promptly turned his back on Bowser and trotted off by himself. He decided he would go down on the Green Meadows and see what he could find there. So he trotted down the Long Lane, through the cornfield and onto the Green Meadows. There he was in doubt just what to do. He poked his nose into a lot of the private little patches of Danny Mouse, but nowhere did he surprise Danny. In fact, he didn't discover anybody and presently he began to feel a bit lonely. He was just about ready to turn and go back to Farmer Brown's dooryard and join Bowser in a nap, when he came to a hole. This hole had a nice sandy doorstep. Right away Flip began to investigate. He sniffed at that hole. He smelled some one. It was a strange smell that tickled his nose. It was the scent of some one whom he had never met. It excited him.

Flip barked. He stood back and looked at that hole and barked. Then he ran up and poked his nose inside and sniffed again. Once more he drew back and barked. Every minute he was growing more excited. The more he barked the more excited he became. He can always get himself excited just by barking. Most dogs can.

"I wonder who that fellow down there is," thought Flip. "That hole is almost big enough for me to get into. I believe I could dig that fellow out if I tried. It's a hot day to dig, but it would be a lot of fun to get hold of that fellow and shake him to death. I believe I'll try it."

"I wonder who that fellow is down in there," thought Flip.

So Flip began to dig. How he did make those forepaws go! The sand came out behind him in a stream. Every once in a while he had to stop

47 Years' Practice Taught Dr. Caldwell

Many things about Men and Women

DR. CALDWELL loved people.

He studied the habits of his patients and tried to improve their ways of living. His observations over a long period of time convinced him many people were ruining their health by a careless choice of laxatives. Then he determined to write a prescription which would get at the cause of constipation and correct it quickly and safely.

How successful his efforts were is best shown by the fact that the prescription he wrote back in 1885 has become the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness, and lack of appetite, or energy showed him that the bowels of men, women or children were sluggish. It proved successful in the most obstinate cases. So men liked it. Old folks liked it because it never gripped. Children liked its pleasant taste. And everybody is pleased with the gentle way it accomplishes its purpose.

By 1888, the demand for this laxative was so great that the doctor permitted it to be bottled and sold by druggists. Today you can obtain Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from any druggist in the world.

Ever Old and Ever New, YOUNG AND OLD ALIKE SWARM TO "GREATEST SHOW" Circus Thrills Big Crowds

BY C. B. WILMER, JR.

All roads lead to Glen Iris drive Monday afternoon and night and over these roads traveled thousands of Atlantans, young and old, their destination being the "big top" of John Robinson's "greatest show on earth."

The art of entertainment has made great strides in recent years but Atlanta remains "circus conscious." The lure of the sawdust, the trained animals, performers of every kind and the pink neonade salesman still retains its pristine pulling power. Ever old and ever new, its appeal is universal, as was ably demonstrated by two full houses at the afternoon and night performances.

"Right this way, ladies and gentlemen, to see the world's greatest collection of strange, unusual people."

The sideshow, as necessary to a circus as a rudder to a ship, was set up right by the main entrance and contained the unusual assortment of fat ladies, giants, hula dancers, minstrel performers, snake charmers and midgets.

Menagerie Interesting.

And then the entrance to the big show itself. A steady stream of people poured in at least an hour before the start of the performance and managed to amuse themselves by gazing on the ever-present collection of wild animals. Of these there were enough to delight the most ardent cross-word puzzle fan. It seemed that only the three-toed sloth was missing and there may even have been one of those. There was the "smallest hippopotamus in the world," lions, both male and female, camels, elephants without end, llamas, "the happy monkey," monkeys and so on through the long list.

With a blare of trumpets the big show gets under way. First, the parade around the arena followed by a succession of awe-inspiring performances taking place in each of the three rings at the same time. One minded the heat or the element-like benches. The show was on. Nothing else mattered.

Dazzling Performances.

There were performing dogs, horses, elephants, camels, bears, bareback riders, a strong man, clowns galore, greynoids which jumped astounding heights, small terriers and monkeys jumping into blankets after climbing a tall ladder, whirling dervishes, the hunt, and last but not least, the death-defying trapeze artists who risked life and limb in a dazzling exhibition of twists and turns high above the safety net. And the show was over.

Immediately after the last performance Monday night, the wrecking crew began and as quickly as they had been set up, the big tents were dismantled, loaded and a long train pulled away to bring joy to other youngsters of all ages in other places.

At the Capitol.

LOEW VAUDEVILLE, featuring Jack Wilson, "Our Modern Maidens," with Jean Crawford, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Anita Page and Rod LaRocca, Fox Movietone pictures in the First All-Georgia Air Tour sponsored recently by The Constitution. The picture begins at 12, 2:30, 5:30, 7:30 and 10 o'clock, while the vaudeville goes on at 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:30 and 9:30 p. m.

That the gentle art of the black-face comedian still holds high in the hearts of Atlanta theatergoers was proved Monday night when a huge Labor Day audience put its stamp of applause on the act of Jack Wilson.

The vaudeville bill at Loew's Capitol this week is good from start to finish, but the efforts of Mr. Wilson and his crew seemed to have the edge on the others from the standpoint of the audience's reaction. Wilson has able support in his clever patter and stunts.

Virginia Rucker and her revue artists pleased with their song and dance numbers. Nimble feet and excellent voices of this troupe brought a deserved reward of applause. Coogan and Casey and their doctor's office sketch and Howell as speakers entertained delightfully with a voice and piano act.

The juggling and crayon sketching of Gibson and the couple that followed in a big hand. The lady does the drawing and the man does the tricky juggling.

The feature motion picture, living up to its title, is plenty modern. Fast college youngsters set a terrific pace in this picture and bar dull moments. The picture is "The All-Georgia Air Tour" from the vaudeville circuit. It features Mayor Ragsdale and Clark Howell as speakers with Harry O. Mitchell as chairman. The picture shows the christening of "Miss Georgia" by Miss Sue Hardman, daughter of the governor.

—BEN COOPER.

At the Paramount.

"THE DANCE OF LIFE," a Paramount all-talking adaptation of the stage play, Burlesque with Hal Skelly and Nancy Carroll. Paramount sound news also on at 11:30, 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:30 and 9:30 o'clock.

With the stage providing a passable story and a much more than acceptable leading man, "The Dance of Life," first attraction at the "new" Paramount, contrives, happily, to be better than the average run of talkers.

For no discernible reason the longer title was substituted for the stage name of "Burlesque" and for very obvious good reasons. Hal Skelly, star of the original show, was secured to do the role of the irrepressible and irresponsible mountebank.

The story is an old one but falls safely in the "sure-fire" category. A talented, but weak, comic hoover meets and teams with a pretty and competent, but not too clever, specialty dancer. They marry. The road is a bit rough, what with his periodic spreps and an occasional peccadillo, but she sticks with him and lands him on the Big Street. Here, of course, money and fair weather friends combine to make him forget his little helpmate.

The break comes and he stands up under well enough until she returns to New York with her cattle king. He snaps then and goes from bad to worse until she comes back to take him through his routine.

Skelly is splendid. Nancy Carroll, as the wife, is sweet and appealing. By Boley, as an old-time and husky burlesque "mama" also is amusing. The lines are good at times and the directing intelligent, for the most part. Strangely enough, the sentiment, of which there is plenty, is kept from becoming sloppy and a certain pungent and appealing air is maintained through the most trying scenes. This may be attributed in a large part to Skelly's masterful characterization.

The whole affair could cut about one-fourth without serious damage.

—LEWIS HAWKINS.

At the Rialto.

"THE AVANT TRUTH," a Radio all-talking picture, with Ina Claire, Henry Dan, Paul Harvey and John Roche. Also "Dancing Around the Clock," a short novelty, and "Pathe Sound News." Picture begins at 11, 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:30, 9:30 and 9:30 p. m.

In a week of hot-rod-totus films, the lovers of the legitimate drama and devotees of clever and subtle repartee will find their mecca at the Rialto theater this week, where they also will discover a new film favorite, Ina Claire, the famous stage star, who recently got her name into the papers by John Gilbert.

Acclaimed with a great deal of justification as the most charming-voiced star to face the cinema mike, Miss Claire is seen in "The Avant Truth," a light comedy of marital static, which she played on the stage, and the transformation to the screen is capable, with very good mechanical reproduction of voice and such.

The story, inconsequential enough, furnishes an ideal comedy framework, with one of those married mixups, where the husband thinks he wants a divorce and the wife is sure of it, but after subsequent adventures with a crude oil man, extremely so, the loving and laughing couple decide to keep on fighting together after all.

Every principal in the picture is a stage star and the opus is correspondingly excellent. It is probable that Rialto will find Miss Claire to be one of their best box-office attractions after this.

"Crystal Champions," a novelty reel made in Florida of a number of swimming champions, is of unusually high merit.

—ELMO HAMBLY.

landscape, dialogue and Irish humor are given prominence.

The abundance of local color is interesting and pleasing or otherwise, depending upon how much one knows of Ireland. The overabundance of sentiment is rendered digestible by the personalities of Rory O'More (James Hill), leading man, and Colleen Moore (Helen Hayes), who is the mellow voice of the delicate lass.

As a vehicle for introducing Miss Moore's voice to former audiences who knew her only in pantomime, "Smiling Irish Eyes" was a happy selection. Besides long and frequent conversational stretches, repeated opportunity is provided for songs well suited to the mellow voice of the delicate lass.

An Irish peasant and his much-loved colleen separate when the former seeks his fortune in America. The separation threatens to become permanent when the colleen mistakenly sees her Irish peasant had grown big-time and big daddy. He explains the mistake and plies her with Irish. This is the scene, which suffers none for lack of intrigue.

At the Georgia.

KEITH VAUDEVILLE, featuring Alexandria and "The Modern Maidens," with Jean Crawford, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Anita Page and Rod LaRocca, Fox Movietone pictures in the First All-Georgia Air Tour sponsored recently by The Constitution. The picture begins at 12, 2:30, 5:30, 7:30 and 10 o'clock, while the vaudeville goes on at 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:30 and 9:30 p. m.

There are, as the eminent Professor Aldrich used to try to convince us, certain mathematical facts that can't be overlooked. For instance, if you were to add a given quantity to zero and expect to obtain a result greater than the original given quantity.

So it is that the right merry business of adding one or two good acts and turning them into a "unit show" by a mighty puff of producers' lungs and the addition of a handful of innocent bystanders hired at offhand rates, is a great economy but the total result is still one or two good acts plus a lot of tripe which you can figure as zero as you like.

Eddie Alexandria and Ole Olsen and Jack and Ruth Hayes are good acts. They always have been, and they're right up to standard on the recent Keith bill, but save for the current value of several good acts, the rest of the evening's entertainment is a complete and roaring washout.

After a deal of putting about, Messrs. Alexandria and Olsen, who, the rest of the evening, to a satisfactorily happy close by a rapid-fire ten minutes of their own gags and a bright spot in the middle is the turn of Mr. and Miss Hayes.

Miss Hayes, who is a couple of rocks at Mr. Olsen for his hired hand-clapping, but remember that he, with the soul of the artist, probably suffers the inappropriateness and indignity of the situation more keenly than you.

"Skin Deep" is much better than average picture fare, with impersonations by Monte Blue, tears by Davey Lee and loud hisses by Betty Bronson.

GREAT LAKES RISING; ENDANGER PROPERTY

Chicago, September 2.—(United News.)—The "Great Lakes mystery," or "who is stealing the water of the lakes," a continued novel in all the newspapers of the lakes region for the past several years, went up in smoke today—or rather in water.

Three years ago the water in the lakes began to recede so rapidly that shipping was endangered, many docks were useless and islands in the lakes were revealed which even the oldest citizens didn't know existed.

So serious did the situation become that shipping interests hired experts who, after due deliberation and investigation, decided that the Chicago drainage canal, which takes from the lakes several million cubic feet of water a day and diverts it to streams which flow into the Mississippi, was at fault.

Legislators of near-by states held special sessions to condemn and deplore "the selfishness of Chicago" in "ruining the lakes," the experts predicted that if the drainage through the canal were allowed to continue the lakes would turn into mere mill ponds, and the Canadian parliament even considered the situation in connection with lower efficiency of the St. Lawrence waterway.

Takes Full Quota.

The city of Chicago continued to take from the lakes its full quota of water, despite all protests, and asked for more. For another year the levels of the lakes continued to lower. The situation was becoming desperate. Something had to be done.

When the hullabaloo reached a peak mother nature quietly took a hand. Just as suddenly as they had receded, the lakes began to rise and rise.

The experts soon disappeared; the legislatures became occupied with something else, and Chicago daily took all the water she could use.

Still Rising.

But still the lakes rose. Bathing beaches were submerged, docks were

Bob Played Faultless Golf to Card Fine 70, Says Von Elm

ATLANTA STAR KEEPS SHOTS DOWN MIDDLE

Tril Tolley Makes Good Showing After Terrible Start.

By George Von Elm, Special Amateur Champion 1925. (Copyright, 1925, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Pebble Beach, Calif., September 2.—Two west coast youngsters, Gibson Dunlap, of Los Angeles, and Donald Moe, of Portland, shared qualifying honors here today with Bob Jones, defending his national amateur championship in the thirty-third yearly renewal of major event in international played behind Jones and from long distance indication, Bobby made a faultless round. I was on sixteenth green when a crowd of 400 fans let out a soul-inspiring cheer that I later found followed by a final 35-foot putt into the hole for a birdie four.

Checking up when I had finished, around the unanimous opinion that Jones had enjoyed a remarkably easy day, that he was seldom off the ways, played every stroke crisply and otherwise conducted himself in a manner truly becoming the great amateur champion of all times.

Putting well. Calamity Jane. Bobby's trusty trusty, has carried him through a year of brilliant golf, and I only believe, when Jones is put to the test, that he is one of the best golfers the world has ever known. Bobby putting here well enough now, but he played with him when I was conceded him many of the 20, 30, 40-foot putts that he missed to tril Tolley started out to play as golf should be played. On first hole Tolley carried near 300 yards, leaving him a short yard pitch to the green. He then his approach into a trap and finally wound up with a 35-foot putt. The caliber of the golfers they send from England is best illustrated Tolley's work on the next two holes. After his disastrous start, Tolley ripped into the longest shot I have seen—followed with a perfect run to the long par five second and yanked carefully for his birdie four to one stroke back.

RANKING MEMORY. The memory of that first hole must be still ranked for he was off on third hole a cannon and ended up with a birdie three and was again on par. He found trouble—and glory—during the rest of his round and finished with a fine 70—even more brilliant in his score than the last round. Lord Chester Hope, England, who is a finalist in the 1924 British amateur, is a local American booster right.

The eighteenth hole here is wicked. To play your first shot from a narrow teat extending well into the sea, the carry to the fairway is only 200 yards—the rest of the hole is occupied by a lot of rolling terrain—in fact it seems the entire ocean is immediately in front of you and a 50-foot rock-bound bank rises the edge of the fairway.

REMAIN STRAIGHT. Once on the fairway, all you have to do is stay straight, clear of the sea woods on one side and the ocean on the other. Hope played his first hole carefully and reached the fairway. He hooked his second into the sea, dropped another ball and again fell into the ocean. This was a good ruffe for the temper of even a fine English gentleman, but when he repeated the stunt twice more—must have been the most terrifying rain imaginable and an incoming wave will power prevented him from lining a saddened gallery just what thought of the California side of Pacific ocean.

Everything turned out well—it didn't have been better—in fact, if I hadn't been there to witness it I wouldn't have believed it either, but when Hope walked over to pay his respects to the ocean, there was a ball nestled in the rocks, 25 feet from the fairway. That isn't half the ball had selected the only favorable lie in the vicinity. That still is half of it. Hope clambered down bank, played the best shot of his life, and his ball came to rest within shadow of the flag, to change at threatened to be a national calamity into the most brilliant event of the day by sinking his short putt a birdie four—and if that wasn't it, I'll never know what is.

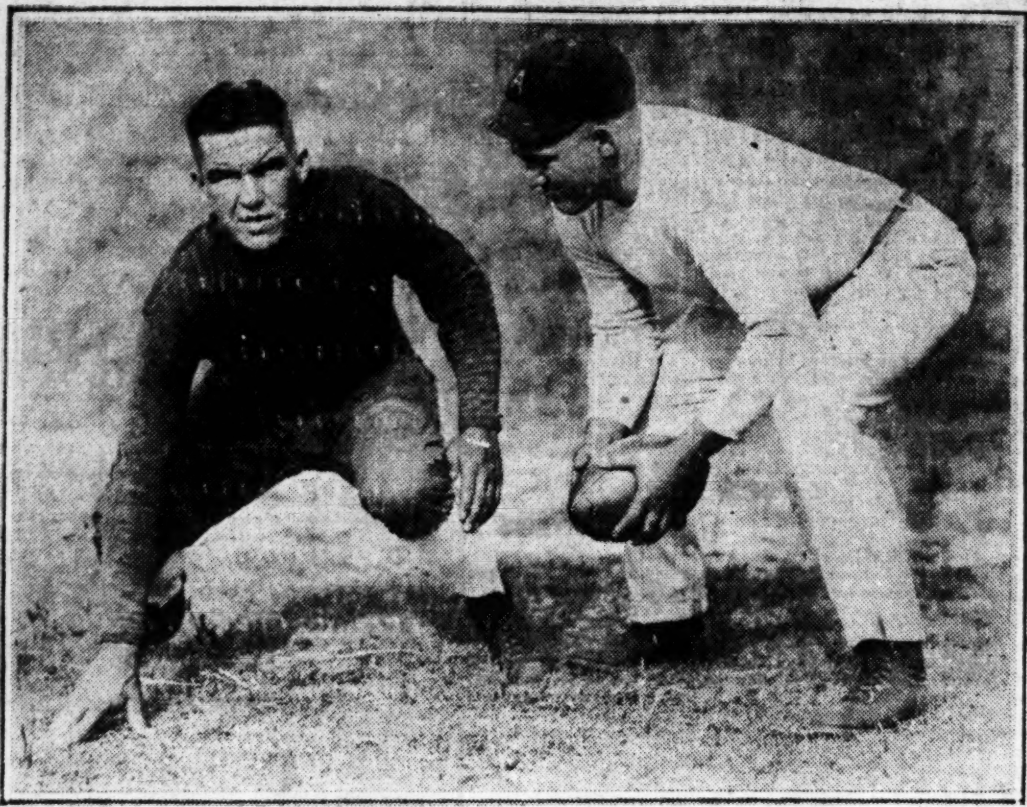

Lord Hope will be telling about that hole for years to come—and I'll never forget it.

WORST BREAK. Harold Thompson, a youthful stylist from Southern California, collected the worst break of the day—and it happened coming to the eighteenth. Thompson's second shot carried into the rocks bordering the ocean and what certainly proved to be an unfavorable lie.

Someone assured him he would be to play the shot, when he could be dropped back upon the fairway with a penalty of two strokes. California coverage—especially the one you find around a golf course—is never been questioned, and Harold, siding to a bush with one hand, tried to play out. It was a heart-breaking, and he used up five shots hitting back to the fairway and was forced to take an eleven on the hole. He still finished with an 83 when all the golfers would have given up. Donald Moe clinaxed a great out and with a ten-foot putt for a birdie four and his 72. I know a lot about a young man, I met him here in the state amateur a few years ago and when our 18-hole match was over—I was out of the tournament.

I have been waiting ever since to see one tell me Moe couldn't play golf. If he continues half as well tomorrow as he played today—he is going to be one dangerous player in the match play competition starting Wednesday.

Where Brotherly Love Ends

Above is a picture of Coach Bill Fincher, himself, on the right, giving a parting word of advice to his kid brother, Sam, before the youngster went into his first fall drill with the Georgia Tech Varsity squad. Sam is a tackle candidate and as such will be under the direction of Big Bad Bill. It is Sam's first shot at a Varsity berth and those who know say that Brother Bill is not sparing words telling the youngster things.

N. W. ATLANTA WINS IN DIXIE

3-1 Victory Over Boethian Class Wins Pennant for Summer.

Northwest Atlanta brought the Dixie League season to a close with a hard-earned victory over the Boethian Class, 3 to 1, at Alameda Park Monday afternoon and won the 1925 pennant.

The Boethians drew first blood in the third when Cooper singled. On an attempted sacrifice play Henning reached first and Cooper was safe at second when Gibson dropped the ball. Both runners advanced on Whitely's sacrifice and Cooper scored on Pirkle's long fly to center.

After his disastrous start, Tolley ripped into the longest shot I have seen—followed with a perfect run to the long par five second and yanked carefully for his birdie four to one stroke back.

Landrum hit his second double of the game to start the fireworks for the winners in their half of the fourth. He advanced to third on a short passed ball and scored when Fleming brought him home with the squeeze play. Fleming went to second when that base was left open. Fuller's infield out advanced him to third and Cooper's well heaved allowed him to cross the plate.

Albany Man Wins Speedboat Race

Macon, Ga., September 2.—(AP)—M. W. Tison, of Albany, Ga., piloting a 10-horsepower motor, won the first place in a free-for-all race, the feature of Lakeside's first annual racing program, when he rounded the buoys in three minutes and 32 seconds, defeating Joe Barrow, of West Point, by a small margin.

Tison and Barrow were two of five taking part in the free-for-all event, including all class boats. The race was a nine-mile feature of three heats, the first heat was taken by Barrow, with Tison coming in second. The next heat was taken by Tison, Barrow crossing the line second. With 800 points each, the two pilots entered the third and last round. Tison came in by only a few seconds margin.

Southeast Series Opens Wednesday

Montgomery, Ala., September 2.—(AP)—President Cliff Green announced today the post-season series between Montgomery and Tampa to decide the Southeastern League championship would open in Tampa Wednesday afternoon.

The pennant will be awarded to the team winning the first four games out of seven. Weather permitting, the first three games will be played in Tampa, the fourth game will be played in Montgomery. The series will close in Montgomery regardless of the number of games required, Mr. Green said.

Osmand Captures Belmont Opener

New York, September 2.—(AP)—Osmand, one of the most popular racers of the east, today carried 140 pounds to victory in the Highweight handicap, which featured the return of the thoroughbred sport to Belmont park for a 15-day meeting.

Off to a good start, the great son of Sweeper stayed in front under the guidance of Willie Gardner and won by a head. Balke best George D. Widener's Finto by a length for the place. The race, over six furlongs, was run in 1:10 3-5 and was worth $3,000 to Osmand's owner.

A holiday crowd of more than 20,000 welcomed the sport back to Long Island after a 30-day sojourn at Saratoga.

Savage Attack Wins For Strib in Eighth

Cook, Badly Battered by Smashes, Tosses in Towel—Cal Hubbard Fails to Last.

Macon, Ga., September 2.—(AP)—A savage seventh round assault upon the body of George Cook that saw the tough Australian go down for the count of nine culminated in a technical knockout for Young Stribling, of Macon, tonight when Cook's manager, Billy Ames, threw in the towel at the start of the eighth.

Cook, bleeding profusely from a jagged cut on his cheek that extended several inches, was in a bad way at the conclusion of the seventh and was unable to continue the battle. Up until the seventh, the bout was fairly tame, with both fighters getting good blows occasionally and with Stribling having a slight margin of points. Cook proved durable and willing and kept boring in on the Macon brawler.

At the start of the seventh, however, Stribling began pouring rights and lefts to Cook's head and midsection and pounded him from pillar to post as the crowd roared its approval. Stribling landed a left and right to the jaw to start the seventh, while Cook countered with a short right hook to the head. A short, hard right to the jaw dropped Cook for the count of nine. He then got up and held on while Stribling flailed him about and rocked his head with jolting punches. Stribling smashed Cook with another powerful right to the head and then followed Cook to the ropes with a stream of rights and lefts to the head. Cook was bleeding badly and on the verge of a knock-out.

The bell rang for the end of the seventh, but the two embattled fighters, toe-to-toe in the center of the ring for several seconds before Referee Dave Barry could get them to their corners. A doctor examined Cook between rounds and it was obvious that he was unable to continue. The towel was thrown in by the Australian's corner, bringing the bout to a close as Barry raised Stribling's hand.

The fight, which was the last that Stribling will fight in America before his European invasion early in October, was witnessed by the largest crowd that ever saw a prize fight in Macon. Fans from all over the state poured in and the house was a sell-out.

Dave Barry, famous "long count" referee of the last Dempsey-Tunney battle, refereed both the final and semi-final bouts. Barry also addressed the crowd on his version of the Gloucester title scrap over which a world-wide controversy rose. It was Barry's first trip in the south to referee a bout and the crowd greeted him warmly. A few fans in the audience started counting when Barry entered the ring, but it was largely in a spirit of fun and there were no bones nor bad feelings.

In the semi-final bout, Cal Hubbard, former all-American football end at Geneva college and an umpire in the Sally league, proved a willing mixer, but winded in his debut as a professional fighter and at the end of two rounds of milling with Spike Webb, of Waycross, reached the limit of his endurance and his seconds had to throw in the towel. Hubbard rushed Webb furiously in the two rounds, while Webb boxed coolly and outlasted his less-experienced opponent.

Skipper Returns To Win Race

Gloucester, Mass., September 2.—(AP)—The Progress, captained by Manuel Dominguez, who retired from the sea 15 years ago and then returned to show his rivals how to sail a boat, was declared champion of the American North Atlantic fleet tonight as a result of her victory over three other Gloucester schooners today.

The original plan made it necessary for the champion to win two races but the first two attempts Saturday and Sunday to finish a race failed because the wind dropped. The anxiety of the fishermen contenders to return to the fishing grounds caused the four captains to agree to the Progress' race to end the series and call the Progress the victor.

By her victory the Progress won the Proutis cup and $1,500 with $650 divided among the crew. The Arthur D. Story captain, Ben Pine, won the racing prize of $1,000 with $550 for the crew. The Elsie, Captain Norman Ross, won third prize of $500 with $450 for the crew, and the crew of the Thomas S. Gorton, Captain Wallace Parsons, were given $350.

The Progress went around the 37 1/2 nautical mile course in five hours, 30 minutes and 53 seconds today.

Big Tackle. Gordon, of Illinois, a tackle, stands 6 feet 4 inches and weighs 300. Next to the best tackle in the Big Ten last year.

EAGLE AND 4 BIRDIES GIVE DUNLAP LEAD

Youth Showed Courage in Downing Bob at Home Hole.

By Frank Getty, United News Sports Editor. Pebble Beach, Cal., September 2.—Along about the time that the folks in the gallery were reaching for their cough drops, after cheering themselves hoarse for the champion when he finished a brilliant round of 70 in the first qualifying round of the amateur championship this afternoon, stepped a slim, sandy-haired, freckled youngster from down state to cap Bobby's performance with a sparkling 69.

Gibson Dunlap is his name, and it leads all the rest.

Playing around behind Jones and quite unnoticed by the record gallery which charged over the fairways at the Atlanta's heels, the 21-year-old Southern Californian student quietly matched Bobby's best efforts and went him one better in the end.

Four birdies and a screaming eagle soared from the youngster's ably handled woods and irons as he chipped three strokes from par over the championship Pebble Beach course to show the way to all the field of 150 in the national amateur tournament.

A few minutes before Gibbie ran down a last long putt, Bobby Jones had caused a mighty cheer to go rolling out over the Pacific by completing his own qualifying round of 70. But the echoes of that cheer had no time to die away before they were caught up again for young Dunlap.

Thus history repeats itself. Once more a golfer heretofore unknown to national fame leads the field at the end of the first qualifying round.

Amateur championships, of course, are not won by brilliancy in the qualifying test. But this blonde youngster from Los Angeles has had his day in the sun.

Only there wasn't any sun. It was "most unusual weather," with long hanging grey clouds laying the vaunted California sunshine a dead styne throughout the day.

Otherwise the first national championship ever held on the Pacific coast got under way with blare and brilliancy. There was a record crowd estimated at ten thousand. By the more optimistic of the local accountants, the largest throng that ever witnessed since the days when Bill Tilden and Bill Johnston, at the head of rival contingents, were fighting for supremacy.

25 Respond To Mercer Call

Macon, Ga., September 2.—(AP)—In response to the first call for football practice at Mercer university, 25 candidates for the Bear varsity eleven for 1925 assembled on Alumni field this afternoon and went through a light workout under the tutelage of Coach Lake Russell and Harold McNabb.

"Yank" Wright was one of four missing players from last year's varsity. He is reported as being on his way to Macon, however, and is expected tomorrow morning. Clarence Stovall and Drin Watson, ends, and Harry Lamson, center, were the others missing.

The players who reported for the initial workout in the afternoon (Baggy) Mallard, Bill Griffin, Amos Gobby and Sewell, ends; "Skinny" Gear, Luther Ray, Plunkett, Wilder, "Red" Nightingale, tackles; Harry Lane, "Shorty" Walker and Mac Marshall, centers; "Red" Adams, Frank Branch and Davis, guards; Brewer Corbin, Jody Matt, Bill Alderman, Jimmy Matthews, Hollingsworth and McGinty, backs.

Today's workout consisted of punting, passing and general calisthenics.

Greentree Four Downs Old Aiken

Westbury, N. Y., September 2.—(United News).—John Hay Whitney's Greentree Four, composed of himself at No. 1; the two California stars, Elmer J. Boeske, Jr., and Eric Pedley, at No. 2 and No. 3; and Winston Guest, the internationalist, at back, rode roughshod over the young Old Aiken team to score a 19-to-10 victory before 10,000 spectators in the second match of the open polo championship today.

The Old Aiken team, winner of the third Westbury challenge cups, the national junior championship and the Herbert memorial cups, were playing against too much class today.

Benning Officer Low in Tournery

Columbus, Ga., September 2.—(AP)—Leading the field by 11 strokes, Major O. N. Bradley, of Fort Benning, won the qualifying medal of the fourth corps area golf tournament with a 26-hole score of 78-73 for a 151 here today. Seventy-four officers turned in cards.

Major F. E. Hickson, of Fort Benning, was runner-up to the medalist with rounds of 82-80-102.

Pebble Beach Proves Hard for Many Stars

Robert Edgren Believes 79 Will Be Limit for Qualifiers; Jones' Round Described.

By Robert Edgren. Pebble Beach, Calif., September 2.—Gibson Dunlap showed the way to Bob Jones by a single stroke in the first qualifying round on the amateur championship. Dunlap shot a 69; Jones shot a 70.

Harrison Johnston, Dr. Willing, Don Moe, Eugene Homans and Roland MacKenzie shot par 72, and John Lehman scored 73. After that the star players took a jump to the 75 bracket where Tolley, Von Elm, W. K. Lanman and Vincent Dolph were chalked up on the big blackboard on the lawn below Del Monte Lodge. Martin, Quimet, Storey and Jack Gaines scored 76, and after that enough crowded in to make it practically a certainty that with another such perfect day for golf with clouded sun and no wind, none will qualify with anything above 79. Thirty-two will qualify when the second qualifying round is finished late Tuesday afternoon.

Although golf conditions couldn't have been better, some of the world's most famous tournament winners helped to prove that Pebble Beach isn't quite as easy as Jones made it look last week when he shot a practice round of 67. Knepp, McHugh, Frank Dolph and Jess Sweetser scored 78, Francis Brown, of Honolulu, was a shot higher, and George went to 80. So did 18-year-old C. S. Seaver, of Los Angeles, who has been shooting great golf for a year past. Seaver showed fighting spirit throughout the round in the second round. He started by getting into traps on the first hole, scoring an 8, but in spite of that disheartening beginning pulled his game together the rest of the way.

WHIZZING EAGLE. Gibson Dunlap started off with a whizzing eagle on the second and sure it took last week when he shot a practice round of 67. Gibson Dunlap is undoubtedly one of the strongest threats to the supremacy of Jones, who is one of the up-and-coming fast young golfers. Medalist twice and winner once in the past two years in the Pacific coast intercollegiate championship, winner of the Southern California championship this year, and well placed in several other major golfing events around the country this year.

As for the only Bobby Jones, "Rubber Tyre" rolled around the fairway today to two under par, skidding at only one hole—the chasm eighth—where he played over the water beautifully but took three putts on a downhill green.

STEADY GAME. Paired with Jack Neville, California champion, whom he led by 12 strokes at the finish, Jones played a steady game, apparently exerting himself only to get a birdie three on the ninth after his three putts on the eighth. A big gallery followed Jones and Neville, clattering up the course considerably and crowding in on the greens until the players had to pitch into a pocket formed of circling spectators.

Through the first nine, Bobby reached the greens with consistently long, straight shots, but was not near the cup with his long putts. Neville was not playing par golf up to the greens, but was holding everything. The first nine he out-approached and out-putted Jones. On the second nine Calamity Jane stopped looking and gave Bobby a 20-footer for a birdie on the eleventh, a 10-footer for the short seventeenth and a 25-foot putt for a birdie on the eighteenth. Through the early holes Bobby was smiling pleasantly, but near the finish the smile was gone. He wore a scowl that was almost ugly. It would have done well enough on a fighting face for Dempsey. And he was fighting, for he was intent upon scoring under par and his tee shots were running out of luck. On the short seventeenth he sliced badly into the sand far off to the right of the green, which is a 220-yard carry over traps if playing for the pin. The ball struck one of the crowding spectators in the middle of the back and dropped into sand churned up by thousands of heels. That was luck, as it happened. The ball might have gone over the cliff into the ocean. The fringe of spectators was pried away to leave Bobby an opening to the green, and he dropped his ball over the trap and 10 feet away from the pin, where he holed a corking three with a tricky side putt.

STILL SCOWLING. He was still scowling on the last tee, and cracked a screaming drive that hit the top of a tall tree about 200 yards away and in the middle of the fairway. The ball struck a thick limb, bounded sideways and settled into a hollow in the rough. There Bobby snatched out a long, low shot along the cliff edge nearly to the green, chipped over the trap and holed his last long putt for the finishing birdie and the 70. One of the crowding spectators in the middle of the green was on the 555-yard uphill fourteenth. He pressed his drive into the rough behind some trees, took his brassie and hit a tremendous 225-yard ball out of long grass and over trees, pitched up four feet from the cup. Perhaps the putt looked too easy after that recovery. He missed.

Some of the youngsters may come through with a surprise party Tuesday. Young Don Moe, as cool as Bobby Jones himself, will carry quite a gallery.

FORREST HILLS CHAMPIONSHIP WON BY BYRNE

Medalist Shoots Seventh Consecutive 76 To Down Allen, 10-9.

J. J. Byrne won an easy 10-9 victory Monday over Gerard Allen on the Forrest Hills golf course for the annual club championship in a 36-hole match. Byrne was the medalist. The final round was preceded by an annual club barbecue.

Byrne shot a 76 on both rounds Monday and it was the seventh consecutive 76 that he has shot since the tournament started several weeks ago. He qualified with a 76, won each of his matches with the same figures, and came back with two more rounds Monday, setting what is believed to be a record in local golf circles for consecutive 18-hole scores.

Allen is considered one of the most promising young golfers in the club, but his play Monday was decidedly off. He topped 10 tee shots in a row and was in trouble on practically every hole.

W. F. Stewart defeated R. E. Brown 5-3 for the championship of the second flight. C. O. Johnson won the third flight honors when he defeated O. T. Griffin, 1 up. F. P. Rose defeated P. D. Biebling 7-6 to win the fourth flight title.

Kilpatrick Wins At Ansley Park. Ansley Park golfers completed only three matches Monday in the first round of the annual club championship tournament. J. T. Kilpatrick defeated R. L. Nichols 1 up on the 19th green in the first flight feature match.

W. B. Kee defeated L. R. Cody 7-5 in the fifth flight, and P. C. Herault defeated G. Bemis 2 up in the only match of the fourth flight.

West Enders End First Round. West End golfers completed all first round matches Monday afternoon in the annual club championship tournament. J. R. Adamson defeated A. R. Phillips 3-2. C. D. Guerry defeated A. J. Cochran 2 up, and Dr. J. M. Swigcock defeated M. M. Benton 5-4 in the championship flight.

Hoo Hoo Finals Reached at West End. The finals in the annual championship golf tournament of the Atlanta Hoo Hoo Club, composed of lumbermen of Atlanta, will be played off next week at the West End golf course. Charles Phillips, Jr., and Frank G. Lake, Jr., are the finalists, both winning their way through after hard matches.

Matches played this week were as follows: Chas. Phillips, Jr., defeated M. Klein 5-4. W. F. Methvin defeated S. J. West 1 up. J. W. Starr defeated H. J. West 3-2. J. W. Starr defeated W. F. Methvin 2-1. J. R. Patillo defeated M. M. Benton 5-4. Frank G. Lake, Jr., defeated Hyman Blacksher 3-1. Chas. Phillips, Jr., defeated A. O. Marbut 3-2. Frank Lake, Jr., defeated J. R. Patillo 2-1. Chas. Phillips, Jr., defeated J. W. Starr 1 up. 27 holes.

SYNOPSIS.

Douglas Dorling, a young British peer, is sent to Dartmoor prison on the pretext of being a spy. He is, in fact, a famous aviator, but to keep this knowledge from his mother and spare her worry, he has been using the assumed name of Douglas Harris; and as Douglas Harris he is tried and convicted.

While the convicts are at work in a quarry, Douglas finds a tobacco tin containing an assigned note, telling him he will be released the next day. He follows directions and escapes in a furniture van.

At this exact moment the governor of the prison arrives at the gates with a distinguished visitor, James Malloran.

The chauffeur tells him the name is Douglas Dorling, and he is going to the Gunter Hotel—almost next door to the prison, at the place where he is least likely to be caught.

He proves to be wrong.

Inside the van Douglas is shaved and dressed in new clothes, then tied himself being dropped into a moving touring car. The chauffeur tells him the name is Douglas Dorling, and he is going to the Gunter Hotel—almost next door to the prison, at the place where he is least likely to be caught.

When Douglas recovers, Cora insists that they go downstairs to dinner. Later they have coffee on the terrace, and sit watching the patrol still on guard for Convict 271.

INSTALLMENT VIII.

Complications.

Dorling could not remove his gaze from the cross on the wall. This part of the corridor consisted of four armed wardens—and one policeman. All most immediately the four wardens were relieved by four others, and a moment later Dorling chuckled.

"They've got Spilman on patrol!" he said, half to himself.

There was no one about. The road, wide at this point, was deserted. Now and again the wardens on duty looked idly in the direction of the hotel. If the eyes of any of them turned to Dorling, they glanced indifferently off his gleaming shirt-front.

"I brought you out here to make you realize how safe you are," she said quietly.

It was a queer notion—but you're betting heavily on me."

"I shall go on betting on you all my life," she said softly, but he ignored her.

His body was reeling in the sense of acute physical luxury. The cool evening air, his comfortable, well-fitting clothes, the sense of space and freedom, however illusory it might be, in contrast to the stifling atmosphere of the cells, were producing an almost savage love of his surroundings. He had thought of freedom always as the right to live his own life in its deeper sense. He had forgotten that the body, too, can revel in freedom.

"You're shivering," he said, eventually. "We'd better go in."

On the upper landing they were stopped by a man backing out of the door of an adjacent suite.

"Try to break up the party, but it's a quarter of 10 and I've got a couple of cases to see tonight. I must go. Thanks... Thanks... Goodbye."

I was the prison doctor, who had been dealing with friends waiting in the hotel. Dorling looked straight at him as he brushed past, but he felt neither's glance. Controlling a violent impulse to run, he followed Cora into the sitting room. Then, as he shut the door behind them, there came reaction from the strain.

"That was the prison doctor," he whispered. "He looked at me."

"Did he recognize you?"

"Don't know—I can't be sure."

I knew then that he was on the verge of another nervous collapse. Take an iron grip of himself, he turned again to the door.

"He recognized me, he will go straight to the patrol," he told her, his face steady. "You can watch the fun from the window."

With every appearance of careless ease he strolled down the staircase and across the hall—thence on to the terrace. He went to the table where he had sat with Cora, as looking for something she had left behind. What he found was a good look at the patrol. The doctor, he perceived, had recognized him and was doubtless trudging back to the prison infirmary.

"That's a pretty good test!" he told himself. "The stunt works. No one could recognize me here—the last spot on earth where any one would look for me."

In new pride and confidence he turned into the lounge, lit a cigarette, and ordered a drink. Ignoring the problem of Cora, he began to make plans for the future. Already he was assuming a completely successful escape from Dartmoor—though as yet he had barely moved a quarter of a mile from the prison itself. He was, in fact, over-confident—whereupon the fates decided to give him a sharp lesson.

There were only two other small parties in the lounge and they had taken no notice of him. He had finished his night cap and was ready for bed. He ground out his cigarette and was just getting up when a hand touched his shoulder.

"Dorling, you old scoundrel, why aren't you in Africa?"

He turned and faced Hugh Granston, a rather fleshy, self-important young man. They had been up at Oxford together, and had kept in touch more or less during the last few years, having several friends in common.

"Hello!" answered Dorling, trying to sound pleased. "This is great! Look here, don't give me away. The trip was a washout. I got a touch of fever and everything went wrong, so I'm sinking back with my tail between my legs."

"Rough luck!" said the other indifferently. "I say, I've got the old boy with me. I'm doing secretary to him—gives me an obit in life, doesn't it?—but it all boils down to driving the Daimler and reading the art catalogues. Here he is. Have to see him to bed."

The "old boy," Sir Aylmer Granston, Hugh's uncle, was an eminent judge of the high court. He had been a close friend of Dorling's father. He now came from the drawing room, and would have passed Dorling without noticing him.

"Uncle Aylmer, you're cutting Dorling."

The judge turned, glared first at his nephew and then at Dorling—then smiled amiably.

"Ah, Douglas! How are you, my dear boy? Heard you were in Africa."

Before Dorling could repeat his explanation, Miss Granston, Sir Aylmer's sister, joined the group.

"Alice, here is Lord Dorling—poor old Dorling's son—you haven't seen him since he was a baby, I believe."

Conventional remarks followed in the course of which Dorling gathered that Miss Granston was staying on in the hotel, but Sir Aylmer and Hugh were leaving next morning, the party having arrived after dinner on their way from Turin. The old people turned and moved on.

"Dorling decided he would not wait for the chin wag. He would give them time to get upstairs and then go himself."

"Excuse me, my lord, could you spare a moment to come into the office?"

It was the manager who addressed him.

"Certainly!" agreed Dorling and followed.

If there were a couple of wardens in the office waiting for him, he reasoned, he would gain nothing by refusing to go there. But there were no wardens in the office. The manager bowed him in and shut the door.

"I am in a very difficult position," began the manager. "The fact is—er—T have just heard Sir Aylmer Granston and his party address you as Lord Dorling."

"Well?"

"Well, my lord, I am compelled to ask whether Mrs. Sefton is Lady Dorling."

"Hm!" At that moment Dorling saw no more than a rather annoying incident, his chief preoccupation being to prevent Cora from knowing his real name.

"Your hesitation, my lord, is sufficient. I am sorry indeed, but I must request you to leave the hotel at once."

Leave the hotel at once—with the patrol waiting for him at the crossroads!

"No nonsense!"

"My lord, I respectfully beg you not to make a scene. I manage this hotel for a company and my orders in—er—such matters are absolutely clear. Again I say, I'm extremely sorry—but if you will not go of your own accord, I must send for the police."

"Hello!" answered Dorling, trying to sound pleased. "This is great! Look here, don't give me away. The trip was a washout. I got a touch of fever and everything went wrong, so I'm sticking back with my tail between my legs."

"Rough luck!" said the other indifferently. "I say, I've got the old boy with me. I'm doing secretary to him—gives me an object in life, don't you know—but it all boils down to driving the Daimler and reading the art catalogues. Here he is. Have to see him to bed."

The old people turned and moved on. "I'll join you in ten minutes and we'll have a chin wag," muttered Granston and hurried after them. Dorling decided he would not wait for the chin wag. He would give them time to get upstairs and then go himself.

New Tariff Bill Authors Send Measure to Senate With Lengthy Explanation

Senate Finance Group Says All International Differences Cared For, Home Industry Aided.

Washington, September 2.—(AP)—Removal of all international difficulties in the administration of the American tariff law would be attained, in the opinion of republican members of the senate finance committee, by enactment of the proposed substitution of domestic for foreign value as a basis for levying ad valorem duties.

This statement, along with hundreds of others in explanation of the changes in the rate and administration of the tariff bill proposed by the majority of the finance committee, was contained in an 80-page printed report on the measure made public today by Chairman Smoot.

Although formal action must yet be taken by the full committee before the bill is reported to the senate Wednesday, this was anticipated in the preface of the document which said the committee on finance "reports favorably" on the house measure with amendments and "recommends that the bill do pass."

In recommending adoption of the new section directing the tariff commission to convert the bill's ad valorem rates into equivalent percentage duties based on "domestic value" and report to congress on or before January 1, 1932, the report said such value would be more effective in that all possible international difficulties would be removed, all necessary investigations would be made in the United States, and present inequalities between high and low-cost foreign countries eliminated.

The domestic value would be the same as the definition in the present law of United States value, which is the freely offered wholesale price of the imported or similar merchandise in the American market, except that no deductions would be made for transportation costs, commissions, profits, duty, and other expenses.

It is believed that the elimination of these deductions, the report said, "will greatly simplify administration. Obviously, if the conversion is properly made, the elimination of the deductions will not result in any change in the amount of duty to be collected."

Permit Speedy Action.

Asserting the ascertainment of costs of production had been impossible in many instances and had taken so long in others that necessary readjustments have been denied for two or three years, the report said the proposed new provision allowing the tariff commission and the president to consider differences in competitive conditions between foreign and domestic articles would permit more speedy adjustments and result in rate changes conforming "more nearly to the acknowledged policy of the congress."

In including transportation costs as one of the factors in "competitive conditions," he report said these costs should be calculated to the principal port of importation instead of the principal domestic market.

"Any other solution," it added, "would deny to domestic articles the ability to compete in the markets along the coastal areas of our most populous states."

The proposal to eliminate the new house provision making appraisers' decisions on value final and subject only to appeal to the treasury instead of the customs courts was prompted, the report said, by a belief that all international difficulties in such cases were based on a lack of understanding and "unwarranted misapprehension as to the necessity for customs investigations abroad and the results to be accomplished by them."

Many appraisers' decisions on foreign values could not be ascertained have been reversed by the courts by reason of the introduction of evidence not presented to the appraisers and which the treasury has no opportunity to check, and the house bill attempted to meet this situation by placing responsibility directly upon the importer to produce satisfactory evidence of foreign values.

Since the passage of the bill by the house, the majority report continued, "substantial progress has been made toward amicable and satisfactory adjustments of the international difficulties, affording adequate opportunity for foreign investigations."

YOUTH DROWNS Two Others Fail in Attempt to Rescue.

Memphis, Tenn., September 2.—(AP)—Louis W. Balestrine, 19, was drowned in Old River chute near here today and his two fishing companions nearly lost their lives trying to save him. The three were crossing the stream in a boat, which sprang a leak and foundered.

Balestrine dived and his companions, John Cox and Ed Scruggs, believing him an excellent swimmer, seeing him in trouble, they went to his aid, but lost him in the swift channel. Cox barely made the shore before being overtaken by exhaustion. Scruggs revived him.

Broncho-Busting To Thrill Patrons at 101 Ranch Show

Bucking broncho riders and Indian warriors provide many thrills in the 101 Ranch wild west show coming to Atlanta next week.

The equine outlaws of the 101 Ranch Wild West constitute one of the most exciting features of the diversified entertainments of these so-called "bucking" horses, born with a spirit of evil combat and unrelenting resistance to human efforts at subjugation. The daily struggle of the cowboys to subdue the brutes temporarily provide moments which stir the blood and fire the heart of every beholder.

Miller Brothers have brought from their 101,000-acre Oklahoma ranch a drove of four-footed beasts whose hostility to man is inbred and irremediable. They are "buckers" by nature, whose hatred for bridle and saddle increases with age and association. Unhindered, they are docile. With the appearance of strap or rope they become demons incarnate, a menace to the life and limb of the human being who approaches, and indifferent to the savage passion which dominates them to their own fate.

On Monday, September 9, the big 101 Ranch show will give two performances in Atlanta at Highland avenue show grounds.

FUNERAL SERVICES ARE CONDUCTED FOR PAUL EVERETT

Burial was in West View. Born in Alexandria, La., Mr. Everett had lived in Atlanta for a number of years and was prominent in social and business activities. He was department manager of V. H. Kreighaber & Son, Inc., at the time of his death.

Plight of Mountain Boy Moves Hoover To Start School

Madison, Va., September 2.—(AP)—The plight of Ray Burraker, the ragged, uneducated mountain urchin who called upon the president of the United States unannounced and made him the present of a possum, has moved Herbert Hoover to arrange for the education of this youngster and his illiterate chums.

Ever since Ray's visit Mr. Hoover has been impressed with the lack of advantages for the children in the section of the Blue Ridge mountains surrounding his fishing camp on the headwaters of the Rapidan River, and today it became known he definitely had decided to take steps to improve their condition.

The details of what is to be done were worked out at a conference with Ray's father, known throughout the mountain region as "Pa" Burraker, who called on the camp Sunday at the president's request.

For some time the two, one the chief executive of a mighty nation, and the other a rustic mountaineer, who has eked out a living by hunting and fishing, sat beneath the trees in front of the camp and talked and talked.

The background was the rugged slopes of the Blue Ridge; the gurgle of the river, at this point little more than a small stream; a few tents; and the open sky.

Will Head Drive.

But as a result of their conversation, the president decided personally to head a committee to raise funds to build a little schoolhouse. Burraker agreed to see his neighbors and get them to join with him in requesting Virginia state authorities to supply a school teacher.

There are five families living in the vicinity of the fishing camp with about a score of children of school age. Of these five, including Ray, are of the Burraker family. None ever has been to school, nor has fireless education ever taught any of them about the three "R's" of the world beyond their mountain homes.

Burraker told Mr. Hoover he would form a local committee of one member of each household at once and that this group would ask the state for a teacher. Mr. Hoover, in turn, promised to act as chairman of a national committee to raise funds for the school house. About $12,000 is expected to provide all that will be needed at the start. After agreeing upon these details the conference adjourned.

The task of educating the mountain youngsters, however, is looked upon by those who have visited the mountain region as presenting many difficulties.

MOVES HOOPER TO START SCHOOL

Washington, September 2.—(AP)—President and Mrs. Hoover returned to the White House tonight after one of their regular week-end visits at their fishing camp on the Rapidan river in Virginia.

The trip back was extended by an hour because the party stopped to eat supper on the road side.

Some of the president's week-end guests remained at the fishing camp and will return tomorrow. Allan, son of the president, was one of those who stayed in Virginia.

The president had originally planned to return to Washington tomorrow but he decided to make the trip this evening so as to be on hand for his cabinet meeting tomorrow.

Tenant Indicted In Gun Slaying Of Gwinnett Banker

Lawrenceville, Ga., September 2.—(AP)—An indictment charging first degree murder was returned today against "Em" McCart, tenant farmer accused of shooting to death his employer, Dr. A. M. Brooks, of Loganville, as a climax to an argument over ratons.

Six witnesses in the case were brought before the Gwinnett county grand jury today shortly after body had been organized, and an indictment came early in the afternoon.

The physician, banker and landowner was shot last month after an altercation with McCart, and died twenty-four hours later in an Atlanta hospital.

BURGLARS ROB FOUR TAMPA SAFES; TWO ARE DETAINED

Tampa, Fla., September 2.—(AP)—Four safes here received the attention of burglars over the weekend, but only $345 was taken and the police have two suspects in custody.

Safes in a banking company's office and a laundry were blown open; a third, left unlocked, apparently was opened, and an attempt to open a vault in another laundry failed.

A number of fingerprints were obtained by experts and a short time later two men were arrested on suspicion.
